SITE NOW COMPLETED, 'L' IS READY TO START TERMINAL AT MALDEN

By Purchase of Sheldon Estate Railway Secures Last Parcel of Land Necessary for Erection of Structure

WORK TO BE HURRIED

Plans for Station of Artistic Design and Other Construction for Facilitating Transportation Being Drawn

In connection with its work in establishing a terminal for the new elevated structure in Malden, the Boston Elevated has taken, by right of eminent domain, the property of Walter P. Sheldon, 314 Main street. All the other owners have disposed of their property to the Elevated and this is the last parcel necessary for the terminal site.

The property consists of a large colonial style dwelling, a small frame building used for manufacturing purposes, a stable and 24,290 square feet of land. Work has already been commenced by the Elevated in removing all of the buildings upon the site of its terminal at Main and Center streets. Besides the Sheldon estate these include the Keene estate buildings and former church sites. An adjoining building containing the district offices and Malden exchange of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company will not be removed.

Plans are now being drawn for the new terminal station, which will be architecturally beautiful and in conformity with other buildings fronting on Main street in Malden.

The Elevated, by the terms of its franchise, will have five years in which to complete the elevated structure and terminal in Malden. About 18 months of that time has already elapsed and it is generally believed that work will be completed this summer for the commencing of the structural work next spring. The elevated structure will extend from Sullivan square, Charlestown, over a private right of way west of and paralleling Broadway, Everett, as far as the Boston & Maine tracks, where it will branch still farther to the westward, paralleling Main street through Everett and Malden to the Malden terminal.

Boston & Northern cars now running from Lawrence and Lowell via Reading, Wakefield and Melrose to Malden square, and thence over the Elevated's surface tracks to Sullivan square, will enter the new Malden terminal.

Plans are also being prepared for a new Boston & Maine station at Everett to replace the present structure at Main street east of the Broadway railroad bridge. It is proposed to move the location of the station about 500 feet southwest of the present one, bringing it in close proximity to the proposed elevated structure, where a station on the Elevated will be provided. Both the Saugus branch and the main line via Portsmouth of the Boston & Maine railroad will enter the new station and the proposed freight yards of the Boston & Maine will be near it.

GENERAL FIRMIN IN PORT AU PRINCE TO AIM AT PRESIDENCY

PORT AU PRINCE, Hayti.—With the arrival here today of General Antenor Firmin on the French steamer Caravelle there are three candidates for the presidency vacated by the exile of President Antoine Simon.

Gen. Cincinnatus Leconte has a majority of the troops in the capital at his command. General Firmin, however, has a large following. Dr. Robo, who was expelled by President Nord Alexis and later also by President Simon, on the

YACHT PIONEER ON THIRD CRUISE WITH BOY SCOUTS

Under command of Capt. William H. Collins the yacht Pioneer, which is owned by Arthur Carey of Waltham, cast her lines at Carlton wharf, East Boston, today and began her third cruise of the summer along the New England coast for the benefit of the Boy Scouts of America.

Seventeen members of the crew, who have been at the home of Mr. Carey in Waltham for three days waiting for the vessel, went on the cruise. The regular cruise, which occupies two weeks, had to be shortened because of the steamer having been delayed at Rockland, Me. The vessel reached Boston and took on supplies. Her fourth and last cruise as scheduled will begin Aug. 14 and end Aug. 26. Besides the boy scouts and the regular crew on board are Edward Sturgis of Andover, a guest of Mr. Carey, and Stanley G. Cady, certified scout master, who is in charge of the boys.

Chief Justice Marcus P. Knowlton has resigned from the supreme judicial court of Massachusetts, his resignation reaching Governor Foss today. The action takes effect Sept. 7.

Governor Foss so far has given no intimation as to who would be appointed to succeed Mr. Knowlton. A report is being circulated, however, that the vacancy will be given to John Adams Aiken, chief justice of the superior court. Mr. Aiken is a Democrat.

Mr. Aiken's place, according to the same report, will be filled by the promotion of Charles A. DeConvey, the ranking Democrat among the justices of the superior court.

Justice Knowlton is a native of Willsboro, Mass. He was educated at Monson (Mass.) Academy and was graduated from Yale in 1880. He received the degree of LL.D. from Yale in 1895 and from Harvard in 1900.

He was admitted to the bar in Springfield, Mass., in 1882. In 1878 he was elected to the Massachusetts House of Representatives and served one year. He was a member of the Senate in 1880-1.

He was appointed justice in the Massachusetts superior court and served until 1887, when he was a justice in the Massachusetts supreme judicial court. He has served in that court continuously since, and was made chief justice in December, 1902. His home is in Springfield.

ADMIRAL TOGO GUEST AT NAVAL ACADEMY IN TOUR OF WASHINGTON

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—Admiral Count Togo, accompanied by his official aides, arrived here from Washington at noon, and was received with all the honors due his rank. The marine battalion, cadet corps, and the band were lined up and as the visiting admiral passed along he was formally saluted. The admiral and the official visitors were guests of Superintendent Gibbons at luncheon and later the admiral was tendered a reception in the officers' mess. He then inspected the buildings and grounds. He will return to Washington late this afternoon.

WASHINGTON—Tonight the Japanese naval hero will attend another formal dinner in his honor given by Secretary of State Knox. At 10 o'clock tonight he is to be the guest of the National Press Club at an informal reception.

COLLEGE REGISTRARS MEET HERE TO PLAN NATIONAL ASSOCIATION

First Time That a Representative Body of These Officials Has Met to Form an Organization

PROBLEMS DEBATED

Consideration of a Constitution Will Be Followed by Nantasket Visit and Dinner at Atlantic House

For the first time in the history of American education a representative body of college registrars met this morning at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for the purpose of forming a national association and to discuss problems in college organization. Registrars from 70 institutions have promised to attend.

William A. Hervey, registrar of Columbia University, in a paper on "The Proper Determination of the Functions of the Registrar's Office," said that the offices of bursar and registrar should be kept separate. "Suggestions for Uniform Blanks of Transfer of Credits" was read by Arthur G. Hill of the University of Michigan and "How Registrars May Promote Their Common Welfare," by A. H. Espenshade of the University of Pennsylvania.

Consideration of the constitution of the new organization will interest the members this afternoon and a dinner at the Atlantic House at Nantasket will be given in the evening. It is hoped that a precedent for training registrars for their duties, as librarians are now trained, may be established, for it is said too often the office is occupied by some member of the faculty who has been put into it against his will and for no other reason than that there is nothing else for him to do.

The following were present at the morning session: Erasmus Smith, Beloit College; A. Howry Espenshade, State College of Pennsylvania; A. Reinberger, S. F. T. Hoboken; John W. Cremon, Indiana University; Arthur W. Tarbell, Carnegie Tech.; E. O. Smith, Connecticut Agricultural College; Mrs. E. A. Ballentine, University of Maine; A. J. Hare, University of West Virginia; Howard M. Tibbets, Dartmouth; M. W. Andrews, University of Vermont; F. Isabel Wolcott, Oberlin College; Lucy C. Tucker, Rhode Island State College; Arthur Bacon, Hobart College; William A. Hervey, Columbia University; G. C. Sprague, New York University; A. E. Frost, University of Pittsburgh; Caroline B. Greene, Mount Holyoke College; Edmund C. Sanford, Clark College; Charles Hoing, University of Rochester; Miss Julia M. Comstock, M. I. T.; Miss Evelyn Walker, Simmons College; Mary Coates, Radcliffe College; Caroline Shaw, assistant dean Radcliffe; Mary Eastman, Smith College, and Philip M. Hayden, Tufts College.

DESIRES TO SEPARATE STEEL FROM CONTROL OF TRANSPORTATION

WASHINGTON—Concerning the attitude of Congress and the departments toward the United States Steel Corporation the best judgment here is that the Stanley committee, which will not report until next December, will not recommend the dissolution of the corporation but will urge its disassociation from the transportation business in the ore fields and abolishment of interlocking directors with other corporations.

It is not believed that the department of justice will recommend dissolution of the corporation but the department will look very carefully into the interlocking directorship system.

The department of commerce and labor through its bureau of corporations will make another report to the President in a few weeks, sending in all the data in detail upon which the recent summary of Commissioner Smith was based.

The farmers free list bill is certain to be passed by Congress and sent to the President who is expected to promptly veto it. The House will recede from its disagreement to the Senate amendments if necessary to pass the bill.

SPHINX AND THE PYRAMIDS OF EGYPT

Ancient figure the purpose of which has challenged students for centuries

PROF. REISNER SOLVES MYSTERY OF SPHINX

No longer can the Sphinx be considered an impenetrable mystery, if the announcement of Prof. George A. Reisner of Harvard University in regard to its significance is to be believed. Since 1905 he has been in charge of the Egyptian expedition carried on jointly by Harvard and the Boston Museum of Fine Arts and he maintaining the great man-headed lioness was merely a ledge of faulty rock unfit for building purposes dividing the quarry that supplied the stone for the first pyramid from the quarry that was worked for the second pyramid.

This presumably unsightly cape or knob of faulty stone jutting out from the quarries was converted by Cephren's architects and workmen into a colossal sphinx with the head of a portrait of Cephren himself, at about 2850 B. C., or 1000 years earlier than former authorities had supposed to be the date of the Sphinx.

"At the time the Sphinx was carved from the knob of the rock left between the quarries," said Professor Reisner, "the ground was in no sense hallowed, and the choice of the place for the colossal image of the King was simply due to the fact that the ledge had been left untouched by the workmen because it was not of the grade needed for the pyramid construction."

Thus Professor Reisner shatters the pleasant theories that many dreamers in close on 5000 years have built up as to some special significance in the position of the Sphinx. That it looked toward the rising sun, that its gaze was directed toward the pyramids, and that when the sun sank the shadow of the Sphinx was cast forth over its outstretched paws.

More than $14,000 was deposited in the new postal savings bank in the five days ending last Saturday, according to an announcement made by Frank E. Haynes, assistant postmaster of the institution. This showing compares favorably with the records of the New York and Chicago depositories during the first five days. In Boston the number of depositors decreased steadily after the opening day, while the total deposits increased from $2238 last Tuesday to $4771 on Saturday. The number of depositors and the amounts they put in follow:

MEDFORD BOND ISSUE FOR SCHOOL SYSTEM EXTENSION $78,000

Mayor Charles S. Taylor has signed three orders for the extension of the school system in Medford, involving a bond issue of $78,000. This bond issue will replace an issue authorized earlier in the season calling for $60,000.

Of the new issue, $32,000 is for the purchase of additional land at a cost of $2000, and the erection of a $30,000 brick schoolhouse in the Curtis district, with removal of the present frame building from the lot; $3000 is for the erection of a brick schoolhouse in the Osgood district, and $12,000 is for the purchase of land on Hancock avenue and Harvard street adjoining the Lincoln school for playground purposes and with a view to the future enlargement of this building.

With the signing of the bond issue order, the mayor, who had previously called for bids for the erection of a building in the Osgood district, opened the bids and awarded the contracts for the work in order that the new building may be ready for occupancy this fall. The construction contract was awarded to Daniel L. Shepard for $21,707, the heating and ventilating goes to Nichols & Drown for $3087 and the plumbing to William P. Kane for $1180 or a total cost, exclusive of the furnishings, of $26,064. There were 17 bidders on the construction, eight on the heating and ventilating and three on the plumbing of the building.

SENATE BILL MAKES DRASTIC CHANGES IN IMMIGRATION LAWS

WASHINGTON—Radical changes in the immigration law are provided under the terms of a general bill, to be introduced in the Senate today by Senator Dillingham, former chairman of the Senate committee on immigration and of the joint immigration commission. Most of the innovations proposed are the result of the investigations of the commission.

The measure proposes to repeal the Chinese exclusion laws, except so far as they relate to naturalization. In their were all points that had led men and women to assume that here again was some potent evidence of the mysticism and symbolism wrapped up in the wisdom of the Egyptians.

But now comes Professor Reisner to show that after all the position of the Sphinx was determined by the quality of the rock, and that if the quarry had "graded up" evenly there might have been no Sphinx at all to puzzle and awe some 50 centuries of mankind.

STEAMER BRADFORD LANDS

Cheering marked the arrival of the excursion steamer Dorothy Bradford from Provincetown today. The vessel had about 1500 passengers and left port Sunday morning for the trip to Provincetown. She left on her return trip at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon but owing to fog the steamer anchored just outside Boston light, where she remained until this morning.

FROTHINGHAM STARTS ON STATE CAMPAIGN FOR HEAD OF TICKET

Tour of Lieutenant-Governor to Take Him Into All Important Cities and Towns of Commonwealth

PLANS MANY TALKS

Speaker Walker Is in Worcester County and Is Laying Out the Itinerary for an Extensive Canvass

Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham formally opened his campaign for the Republican nomination for Governor today with a tour of the important cities and towns of Norfolk county, where he is to confer with political leaders who are aiding him in his campaign.

Mr. Frothingham left Boston shortly after 9 a. m. for Quincy, where he was taken in hand by Senator Barnes and Representative Thomas, who will accompany him during a part of his tour of the county. On leaving Quincy he is scheduled to visit today Brockton, Randolph, Holbrook, Canton and Franklin.

Tomorrow he will visit in company with the Governor and the executive council, the state institutions of Worcester county. Incidentally he plans to meet his friends and campaign assistants of Worcester county, for conferences on ways and means of pushing his campaign there.

On Thursday the Lieutenant-Governor plans to visit Essex county. The chief object of his trip will be to speak at the Republican outing at Ferncroft inn, Danvers, which is to be held under the auspices of Republicans of Salem, Danvers, Peabody, Beverly and Lynn.

Speaker Joseph Walker today continued his campaign for Republican nomination for Governor with a tour of Worcester county for campaign conferences with his political friends.

On Tuesday Mr. Walker expects to speak at the blackstone old home day celebration and Milbury, Grafton, Northbridge, Uxbridge, Mendon, Hopkdale and Milford.

Mr. Walker's program for Wednesday includes speeches at Douglas, Webster, Southbridge, Oxford, Auburn, Leicester, Spencer, North Brookfield and Worcester. The following day he will visit Leominster, Gardner, Templeton, Windchendon, Hubbardston and Westminster with an evening meeting in Fitchburg in charge of Representative Frank O. Harty.

Friday's schedule is to be arranged by Representative Amos T. Saunders of Clinton and is to include a reception in that town in the evening, following a tour of Boylston, West Boylston and Lancaster.

AWAIT REPLY FROM GOV. FOSS ON REQUEST TO PROVE HIS CHARGES

Politicians of the state today are awaiting a reply from Governor Foss to requests from Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham and Representative Norman H. White, candidates for Republican gubernatorial nomination, that the Governor prove or retract certain general statements said to have been made by him in an interview to the effect that corruption and mismanagement is general in some of the state departments.

At the Governor's office it was said today that he had held a conference with his secretary, Dudley M. Holman, relative to answering the Republican candidates, and that a reply might be expected later in the day. The Governor declined to discuss the subject publicly at present, it was said.

In their letters to the Governor both Mr. Frothingham and Mr. White took exception to alleged statements of the Governor that much of the state's money had been stolen under the eyes of the officials in whose charge it had been placed. Mr. Foss is asked to tell specifically where these supposed thefts have occurred and to name the officials responsible for their misapplication. Unless he can prove his charges the Gov-

DR. WILEY SHORN OF ALL POWER BOASTS U. S. OFFICIAL ON STAND

WASHINGTON—George P. McCabe, solicitor for the department of agriculture, admitted at the Dr. Wiley investigation today that he was the author of the provision in the appropriation act of 1910 which made him solicitor. He also admitted that he prepared general order No. 140, which directed all officials of the department of agriculture to submit legal questions to the solicitor for consideration.

Mr. McCabe also told of an official trip to the Northwest prior to the convention of state food and dairy commissioners, in which he campaigned among delegates to that convention to get votes to sustain the referee board's decision on benzoate of soda.

"I saw everybody I could who was to attend the Denver convention," said Mr. McCabe, "and urged them to support the department's ruling on benzoate of soda. I am proud to say that we won in the convention on the question of an open session and open ballots."

H. E. Davis, counsel for Dr. Wiley, introduced another letter written to Dr. Wiley by Mr. McCabe, asking why proceedings had not been begun against patent medicine manufacturers and vendors, and threatening to bring the subject to the secretary's attention if satisfactory answer was not made.

This was intended to show that Mr. McCabe was supreme in the department and had become the superior of Dr. Wiley.

AWAIT REPLY FROM GOV. FOSS ON REQUEST TO PROVE HIS CHARGES

error is asked to retract his statements. Lieutenant Governor Frothingham's letter to Governor Foss is as follows:

"You are quoted as saying there is not the slightest doubt in your mind that a large part of the state's money has not only been wasted but stolen, not necessarily by the men who are employed to look out for the state's interests, but under their noses.

"As a citizen of Massachusetts and lieutenant-governor of the state I call on you to retract or make good, and at once. You owe it to the dignity of the office you hold, to yourself as a man and to every citizen of this honored Commonwealth."

Relative to the charge of stolen money Representative White says:

"Any Governor who makes this statement and can't prove it ought to be defeated at the polls. I want to record my protest as a citizen of Massachusetts against this method of trying to catch votes.

"Let Mr. Foss do his duty and tell the citizens forthwith where and when and by whom the money has been stolen. I defy him to back up his own words. Under his sworn oath of office he is bound to lay the facts before the proper authorities.

"When a Governor makes such a statement and does not prove it he ought to receive his just deserts at the hands of the voting public. Every citizen is entitled to know the facts when the chief executive makes such a statement as the one referred to above.

"Mr. Foss' administration has been one of talk, insinuation, political intrigue and passing out offices for political expediency. It is high time that the thinking public took cognizance of a statement such as the chief executive has made and required him to produce the facts to the taxpayers of the state.

"Mr. Foss is quoted as calling the railroad commission a joke. This is a remarkable statement, in view of the fact that he has just taken the chairman of that commission and has offered him a judgeship on the superior bench.

"Mr. Foss' attacks on the state farm at Bridgewater are without warrant, and are unfounded. Bridgewater is the best managed institution in the state, and Mr. Foss knows it. The cost per capita for each inmate is $2.55 per week, a remarkably low cost, and these figures speak for themselves.

The Governor in his alleged arraignment of state officials and the management of state departments is quoted as having said in part:

"If I had not been elected, or if somebody who would do what I am doing had not been elected, Massachusetts would soon have been in a great scandal.

"Seven months as Governor have taught me that this 'ideal state' business is a dream.

"The perpetual franchise grants are a crime against the people. There ought never to be any more of them. The people ought to keep these things where they can get at them when they want to.

"Just look at the railroad commission. It's a joke. It is supposed to be a body to protect the people against the railroads. It does exactly the opposite thing. That has got to stop.

"A private employer always gets the most competent labor he can for the money he puts out. The state pays hardly any attention to that principle of business. When one of our institution heads is looking for an employee the custom is for him to make a random pick from the employment office, or to give the job to some relation of his, or to somebody he likes.

"The state doesn't get its money's worth in that kind of dealing. The employment of our Amherst boys on the farms of our state institutions would be a way of correcting one of the evils in the employment of state help."

STATE LEADERS SAID TO FAVOR HAYES FOR FOSS RUNNING MATE

In Democratic circles about Boston word is hourly expected that William P. Hayes of Springfield has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant-Governor. It is said that such announcement will find favor with practically all the state leaders of the Democratic party and with Governor Foss.

It is hinted by some that the announcement would not come, as a surprise to the officials of the Democratic state committee. The state organization is understood to have considered Mr. Hayes as a desirable running mate for Governor Foss this year and to have worked constantly of late to secure a pledge from him that he would take the field.

For some years it has been considered a desirable plan by the Democratic leaders to have either their candidate for Governor or Lieutenant-Governor a resident of the western part of the state. The nomination of Mr. Hayes for Lieutenant-Governor not only would maintain the geographical balance but would prove a strong magnet for drawing the western vote to the other candidates on the Democratic state ticket, according to the opinion of many of the state leaders of that party.

Last year Thomas F. Cassidy of Adams was the Democratic candidate for Lieutenant-Governor. He failed of election by about 8000 votes. Although he desires the nomination again this year and has become a candidate for the position he finds many of his former political friends lined up with Mr. Hayes.

ground of fomenting revolution, is the third candidate for the presidency.

General Leconte's first division, consisting of 4000 men, occupied the capital on Sunday morning without resistance. Arrangements were made forthwith for a joint session of the Senate and Chamber of Deputies, which were expected to elect General Leconte president in succession to the deceased Simon.

Immediately upon his arrival General Leconte attended a te deum at the cathedral conducted by the archbishop. Then he made a tour of the city, finally entering the national palace to a salute of 101 guns from all the fortifications.

Later a new ministry wholly replacing that of the Simon administration was tentatively agreed upon as follows: War, M. Zamor; interior, Judge Cauvin; foreign affairs, M. Guilbaud; public instruction, Senator Lareche; agriculture, M. Lelard; finance, M. Sanarieg.

In an interview at Cape Haitien General Firmin said he hoped the presidential election in Hayti might be carried out legally and without difficulties being raised by any of the other candidates.

Mr. Furniss, the American minister, met the incoming Leconte troops and informed Gen. Saint Juste that at the first firing of the city he would land troops from all the warships.

The various naval commanders and the diplomatic corps complimented Mr. Furniss on the manner in which he handled an exceedingly difficult and delicate situation.

NEW YORK—With her husband, Capt. Charles D. Palmer, Mrs. Palmer, daughter of Luke Wright, former secretary of war, was the guest of Evan R. Dick, a Wall street broker, who took the yacht American to the now overthrown Simon government for the Haytian navy. Mr. Dick and his guests returned on the liner Allemania.

Other passengers were Antoine Simon, Jr., son of the deposed President, and Antoine Pierre Paul, a member of the Chamber of Deputies at Hayti. They have $120,000 in gold belonging to the deposed President.

Mrs. Palmer said that they knew nothing about the revolution, which broke out after they left New York, until the American sailed into the bay of Port Au Prince.

"We were on deck when a party on shore began shooting at us," she said. "They had the range and the bullet came uncomfortably near. My husband or-

DESCRIBE PAINTINGS OF WELD GIFT IN ART MUSEUM'S BULLETIN

The August bulletin just received from the Boston Museum of Fine Arts contains an article on the Weld bequest of 838 Japanese and Chinese paintings to the museum, with illustrations of "A Taoist God," school of Chau-Tin, Chinese-Ming Dynasty, of "Bishamon, one of the Four Guardian Kings of Heaven," Japanese, fourteenth to fifteenth century, and of "Confucius at the Apricot Altar," Kano school, early Tokugawa period, 1803-1808.

"Of the 4000 odd Chinese and Japanese paintings now in the possession of the museum," it says, "838 have been left us by the will of the late Dr. Charles Goddard Weld. Though less than one-fifth of what we own, it would be difficult to overestimate their value in the group.

"These 838 paintings were purchased several years ago by the late Mr. Fenollosa during his residence in Japan at a time when works of art came into the market in greater numbers than ever before or since, owing to the withdrawal of government support from Buddhist temples and the renaissance of Shinto worship through the land.

"They were chosen with the utmost care and by advice of many of the most learned art critics in Japan. Mr. Fenollosa's judgment and matured critical ability were brought to bear in weeding out a mass of paintings which he had accumulated and the result was this collection, containing the cream of all."

Dr. Weld purchased the lot, leaving it to the museum together with much of his metal work.

An illustration is also given of the beautiful Florentine drawing by Lorenzo di Credi which may now be seen in the corridor of drawings.

Another article is on the exhibition of American church silver now shown in the rotunda, about 1200 pieces by New England silversmiths of the seventeenth and nineteenth centuries.

The article on the exhibition of Chinese textiles from the Ross collection is also illustrated and explains many interesting points.

A notice is also given of the university extension courses to be given in the museum by Garrick M. Borden on "Moslem Art and Civilization," and by the directed, Dr. Arthur Fairbanks on "The Mythology of Greece and Rome." Blanks for these courses may be obtained at the museum.

MR. GRAUSTEIN URGES MILK DISTRIBUTION STATIONS IN BOSTON

W. A. Graustein, chairman of the committee of 25 which was appointed at the mass meeting of Boston citizens held at Faneuil Hall last night, said today that the purpose of the committee was to improve the milk situation in Boston and that its first move would be to attempt to induce the city officials to establish free milk distributing stations throughout the city where milk could be distributed from June 15 to Sept. 15. The milk would also be sold at low cost.

In discussing the milk situation as it is at present, Mr. Graustein said: "I believe that the recent agitation of the milk question has not helped the matter in the least. What is needed is to teach people how to handle milk and feed it to children. This has been done in New York with success and I think that it would prove a success if tried in Boston."

A meeting of the committee will be held soon and the course of action decided upon. No definite date for the meeting has been arranged as yet.

dered me to lie down behind a small boat and there I stayed for some time. Finally the firing stopped and I got below. Then we took a number of refugees on board."

Mr. Dick said that the situation in Hayti is serious. It was entirely due, he said, to mismanagement of the country's affairs and to extravagance. The Simon government, he said, was not corrupt, but it was utterly inefficient and aroused the cupidity of revolutionary leaders. There was no chance of a stable government being set up in Hayti under present conditions, he said.

NEW BIPLANE RECORD FOR SUSTAINED FLIGHT

PARIS—M. Reneaux made a new record for sustained flight in a biplane today when he covered 370 miles without descending. Reneaux left St. Cyr at 3 o'clock this morning, and landed at 3:10 p. m. He is trying for the Michelin cup.

NEW YORK—Harry N. Atwood has announced that he will leave today for Milwaukee, where he will start a flight to New York on Saturday for a prize of $10,000 offered by Victor J. Evans of Washington.

The distance covered by Andre Beaumont (Lieut. Conneau, French navy) when he won the prize of $30,000 in the British cross-country aeroplane race, was 1010 miles. The distance over the route from Milwaukee to New York that Atwood has mapped out will be 1062 miles. This is the route that Atwood has decided to follow:

Atwood will not take part in the aero meet that starts in Chicago next Saturday. Flying to Chicago, he will land in one of the city parks, permission to do so being already given, and after giving an exhibition he will resume his flight eastward. He expects to make anywhere from two to four of the towns on his route a day.

The machine in which he will start from Milwaukee was shipped from Baltimore to Milwaukee last Saturday. Two other machines will be shipped from Marblehead today—one to Toledo, O., and the other to Rochester, N. Y.

CHICAGO—A party of Moisant aviators arrived here Sunday for the Chicago meet, which opens next Saturday. Approximately $750,000 worth of aeroplanes and aeroplane fittings from all parts of the world will be in Grant park hangars when the meet is started. Successful contestants will divide $80,000 in prizes and unsuccessful ones will be paid at the rate of $2 a minute for time in air.

PHILADELPHIA—Lincoln Beachey won the first long-distance cross-country aeroplane race ever held in the United States when he flew from New York to Philadelphia Saturday and defeated Hugh Robinson and Eugene Ely. Beachey's time, including a stop at Trenton, N. J., was 2h. 22-5a.

Robinson was second into Philadelphia. BRUSSELS—An aeroplane circuit race of Belgium for which prizes amounting to $7000 and the King's cup have been offered started Sunday. There were 18 entrants. M. Lanson, a Frenchman, won the first leg, from Brussels to Mons, a distance of about 35 miles, in 2 hours 12 minutes. Maurice Tabuteau, M. Parrot and others followed.

LONDON—The Standard gives the details of the largest dirigible yet planned, which Japan is now building. It will be rigid and will have a length of 600 feet and a diameter of a little over 50 feet. It will be equipped with six 120-horse power motors and is expected to make 30 miles an hour against a 40-mile wind and even to be able to go five miles an hour against a 65-mile hurricane.

Entrants to the Harvard-Boston aviation meet are already en route from all parts of the world to this city and the international character of the events will constitute an interesting feature. Among those coming are Weymann, the American world's champion flyer, and Tabuteau, the French aviator and holder of the Michelin cup, who set sail for Boston yesterday.

NORTON, Mass.—An attempted flight with the aeroplane of Judge J. Albert Brackett of Boston was a failure here Sunday. As a result the machine is damaged to the extent of about $300 and is in the hangar for repairs. The machine is a Bleriot passenger-carrying monoplane. It was brought to Norton Saturday from Garden City, L. I.

RAILWAY DROPS DEPOT PLANS
INDIANAPOLIS—The Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction Company has decided not to build new interurban stations at Connersville and Shelbyville. Bids were considered too high by the directors.

DOCKERS WINNING AID TEAMSTERS

LONDON—The arbitrator chosen last week to effect a settlement between the employers and the striking dock laborers has given an award in favor of the men, but the dockers have decided not to resume work until the grievances of the coal porters and lighter men are satisfied. These differences are expected to be compromised within a few days.

The 40,000 dock men who are out were joined Saturday night by 35,000 teamsters employed on the docks. The teamsters first struck in sympathy, but have now formulated demands for an increase in wages. It is expected that by tomorrow operations on the docks and wharves of London's waterfront will be tied up. Some sections of the city had difficulty today in obtaining meats and other food supplies.

A committee from the strikers today protested to the war office against the employment of soldiers as strikebreakers on the South Side granaries in connection with army contract work. The committee predicted that unless the soldiers were called off serious disturbances might result.

SENATE TAKING UP STATEHOOD HEARS RECALL DENOUNCED

WASHINGTON—With the prospect that the legislative day would be continued until tomorrow on account of the large number of senators anxious to discuss the recall of the judiciary, the Senate considered the resolutions today admitting Arizona and New Mexico to statehood.

Mr. Nelson (Rep. Minn.), offered an amendment providing that the President's proclamation announcing statehood should be issued immediately after approval of the joint resolution, instead of 30 days thereafter, as specified.

Mr. Poinceter (Rep. Wash.), opposed another amendment by Mr. Nelson, which strikes the recall of the judiciary feature from the constitution of Arizona.

Asserting the principle to be utterly destructive of a Republican form of government, Senator Borah (Rep., Idaho) opposed the recall of the judiciary in a speech to the Senate today.

"I contend that in writing a law," he said, "we ought to listen closely to the instructions of a well founded and well sustained public opinion. But after the law is written the judge who construes it and by its term measures out to each citizen his duty or his obligations, should consider nothing but the terms as written. He has nothing to do with its leniency or its hardness, its wisdom or unwisdom."

"If the time ever comes when the fundamental principles of our government, as embodied in our constitution, no longer hold the respect and fealty of a majority of our people, popular government will, as a practical fact, not long survive that hour."

Fifty-seven hydrants have been put in place, five being of the five-way type and the remainder being of the three-way type. The work has cost $50,000.

As the pending wool bill is not intended to take effect until next January the revisionists feel that they will not lose much time in the end by this course.

There is no serious intention to act on the cotton bill at this session. There is still a possibility of adjournment by Aug. 15 or thereabout.

DES MOINES STRIKE CASE PROTESTED

DES MOINES, Ia.—Whether Judge De Graff had the right to peremptorily settle the strike of the local car men by ordering the company to reinstate a discharged employee—the only demand of the strikers—and directing the men to go back to their cars and the company to resume operation of the road will be passed on by the higher courts. The attorneys for the company announced today they will appeal. Meanwhile cars are running as usual.

The mandate issued by Judge De Graff of the district court Saturday night ordering the reinstatement of Conductor Hyatt, whose discharge caused the strike, which began at 1 o'clock Saturday morning, was obeyed promptly at 5 p. m. Sunday by the Des Moines City Railway Company and the Carmen's Union, and the order has restored nearly 500 conductors and motormen to their original positions.

place is substituted an amendment to the general immigration law which provides for the exclusion from the United States of "Persons who are not eligible to become citizens of the United States by naturalization."

The exclusion does not apply however to government officers, travelers and members of the learned professions. Various features of the present Chinese exclusion laws are made applicable to all immigrants, and except that manual laborers not eligible to citizenship by naturalization are excluded, the bill proposes to give Asiatic immigrants the same legal status accorded to all other immigrants.

The only portion of the various Chinese exclusion laws not repealed is that section of the act of 1882 which provides that no state or federal courts shall admit Chinese to citizenship.

Senator Dillingham's bill also provides for the exclusion from the United States of "all male aliens 16 years of age or over, who are physically capable of reading and writing, but unable to read and write in some language or dialect." It provides, however, that an admissible alien may bring in his father or grandfather over 55 years of age, or a son not over 18 years of age, whether such persons are literate or not.

The bill makes it unlawful under penalty of $100 for any steamship company to bring to the United States any illiterate alien of the class mentioned, or any alien not eligible to naturalization.

The contract labor provision of the immigration law is retained practically in its present form, but to the excluded classes "persons who have come in consequence of advertisements for manual laborers published in a foreign country are added. There is provision for the criminal prosecution of corporations, companies or persons who solicit or assist in the importation of contract laborers.

The provision of the present law, which permits the importation of skilled labor, if labor of a like kind unemployed in the United States, is amended so as to permit the secretary of commerce and labor to determine the necessity for such importation prior to its accomplishment.

Underwood as a second choice shows a total of 20, which, added to his 17 positive votes, puts him above Harmon and next to Wilson.

WEATHERLY, Pa.—Champ Clark, speaker of the House of Representatives, says in a letter which he has sent to an editor here that he is not a candidate for the presidency. The letter reads:

"While I am not a candidate for President, and may never be, I consider it a great compliment to be thought of or mentioned in that high connection by my fellow-citizens.

"My duty is here helping the House to make good, and I am going to stay here as long as there is anything for me to do. In other words, I am not going to neglect the work here in order to run around the country after another office."

RECIPROCITY IS CHIEF ISSUE AS CANADA'S CAMPAIGN IS OPENED

OTTAWA, Ont.—With tons of printed matter sent out in advance speakers for reciprocity with the United States today are making active preparations to visit every important point in the provinces east of Lake Superior.

It is the evident purpose of the opponents of reciprocity to ignore that as the vital issue as far as they can, and to divert attention from it as much as possible. But the government and its supporters will insist that in the election six weeks from now every ballot for a candidate shall be, morally, and, indeed, politically speaking in decision of the question whether there shall be reciprocity with the United States.

In so deciding the people will determine whether Sir Wilfrid Laurier shall continue to be prime minister or whether he shall be replaced by R. L. Borden, the opposition leader.

TORONTO, Ont.—Two thousand conservatives, in open air meeting here Sunday, cheered denunciation of President Taft's utterance by Sir James Whitney, premier of Ontario.

He reiterated the much-quoted "parting of the ways" reference by Mr. Taft, and added: "I have all respect for the United States and its President and public men, but as a Canadian elector and British subject I have the right to speak. The interference and meddling of the President of the United States in this matter, to use diplomatic language, is, at any rate, uncalled for. I might put it in a way not so mild, but I want to discuss this thing in a sensible, calm and restrained manner."

Sir James declared the aim of the United States to be the annexation of Canada.

JULY BUILDING SHOWS LULL IN NEW YORK CITY

NEW YORK—Building operations in the three leading Greater New York boroughs for July showed a decided lull from activity of the three previous months, but still exhibited a fair increase over the corresponding month a year ago. SENATOR LODGE TO TAKE PART IN NAHANT DEBATE

NAHANT, Mass.—Senator Lodge will not act as moderator at the special town meeting Tuesday afternoon. He will be present, however, and take part in the debate on the article in the warrant which proposes to reopen the new town hall question.

The sum of $75,000 was appropriated for a new town hall at the annual town meeting, but Daniel G. Finnerty, chairman and minority of the building committee, declares that $5000 more is needed in order, he claims, to make the structure fireproof. Hence the call for a special town meeting.

A second article in the warrant is "to see what action the town will take with reference to the construction of a new town hall on the new site."

This, it is said, reopens the whole matter of the town hall construction and gives an opportunity to change the action taken at the regular town meeting in March. At that meeting plans submitted by Mr. Finnerty were adopted by the town.

What attitude Senator Lodge will take is known only to his friends. He may act as pacifier. Many Boston summer colonists are expected to attend the meeting.

ELECTRIC MOTORS TO OPERATE LOCKS AT CRADOCK DAM

In order to expedite the work of opening and closing the locks of the recently constructed Cradock dam at the Cradock bridge, Medford, leading to and from the Mystic river basin, the metropolitan park commission is to install electric motors to replace the machines now operated by hand.

When the Mystic river was closed to tide water by the construction of the dam and the Mystic river basin was formed, there were but very few craft went through the river. Since that time, however, a large number of residents of Medford and surrounding places have put various small craft in the basin and frequently pass through the locks, as many as five boats going through at a time.

MR. REA OPPOSED TO SUBWAY PLANS

NEW YORK—Samuel Rea, vice-president of Pennsylvania railroad, has issued a statement on the subway situation in which he declares not a penny should be spent on the proposed subway system until the city is assured that the lines will have a reasonable chance of becoming profitable and an operator is obtained to operate the same at his own risk, without the necessity of preferential payment or guarantee by the city.

WOMEN FARMERS FROM HEMPSTEAD VISIT NEWPORT

NEWPORT, R. I.—From the Brockholst agricultural school of Hempstead 20 women pupils came here by way of New York city Sunday on the steamer Commonwealth, landing at Fall River and thence proceeding by trolley to this city, inspecting on the latter part of the trip the large farms between Saconet river and Newport, including those of Alfred G. Vanderbilt, Reginald C. Vanderbilt, William R. Hunter, William R. Maher, Mrs. Burke Roche and many others, whose growing crops are now in splendid condition. They were chaperoned by Miss May Donnelly and were brought here by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, who founded the school.

The women, much tanned from their work in the fields at Hempstead, went directly to their hotel and later to Eastons beach, some enjoying the seabathing before seeing the sights about Newport. Their pictures were taken on the beach.

They attracted much attention at the beach and wherever they went. Late in the afternoon they went to Marble house, where they were received by Mrs. Belmont and her sister, Mrs. William Tiffany of Paris, and Mrs. William Slater of New York and shown about the place. Tea was served.

NEWTON FORCED TO BUILD STREET

Because the city government at Newton sold about 300 feet of what has always been known as Circuit avenue, Newton Upper Falls, the city has been forced to begin the construction of the street marked on the plats as "Circuit avenue" but which has hitherto been merely a street on paper.

As a ledge some 40 feet in height will have to be removed, the cost is expected to exceed the $1600 paid for the property.

MADERO TO HELP IN PRESERVING ORDER IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY—Madero's declaration that he will support President de la Barra in his efforts to bring peace and order to the republic and sentiments expressed concerning the separation of Emilio Gomez from the cabinet, has caused the people generally to believe that from this time on vacillating measures are ended.

On Friday warrants were signed for the arrest of more than a hundred Maderist soldiers, including several generals and others of importance in the recent revolution, because they signed a protest couched in seditionary language against the acceptance of the resignation of Gomez. It is said that Madero approves of the action.

Madero arrived in Mexico City and was welcomed by a great crowd which showed extreme enthusiasm. Later he had a short interview with De la Barra. It was given out that nothing of importance was discussed.

Many of those who signed the protest against the acceptance of the resignation of Gomez have said that they had no intention to threaten the government. They merely meant to present a dignified protest and assert that the government had no right to consider that they were attempting to start another revolution on account of the strong language used.

MONTEREY, Mex.—Gen. Geronimo Trevino, former commander of this military zone, is willing to run for President. In an authorized interview he said: "I have frequently said I was not a candidate for any office, but at the same time I will say that I fully recognize the grave conditions that exist in the country and the necessity of every loyal son of the nation being ready and willing to serve here in any capacity for which he may be selected."

RECOUNTS WORK OF THE COMMERCE CHAMBER MEN

The Chamber of Commerce News publishes today an account of the work the chamber has done for Boston in the last six months, not the least of which is the success attending the efforts to restore the port of Boston to its proper position among the maritime cities of the world, and its fight against the attempts of the railroads to increase the freight rates in New England.

Not only did the chamber draft one of the three bills on which the $9,000,000 appropriation and the establishment of a special port administration for developing Boston harbor were based, but it did much to stir up the public demand for this measure.

In addition it has started a campaign for more steamship lines and a system of transatlantic terminals that will surpass those of any other city.

BRINGING PRESSURE ON THE SENATE TO RATIFY PEACE PACTS

Objection Is Voiced When U. S. Arbitration Treaties With Great Britain and France Are Made Public

THAT IS ONLY HITCH

WASHINGTON—Pressure is being brought to bear on the Senate to act favorably on the arbitration treaties recently signed between the United States and Great Britain and the United States and France.

The only objection apparent is the fear of the Senate that some of its treaty-making prerogatives may be endangered by the new conventions. This is denied by Secretary Knox.

The Senate adopted on Saturday the unusual course of making public the text of four treaties which have not yet been acted upon by it. These were the Anglo-American and the Franco-American general arbitration treaties and the treaties providing for the adjustment of the finances and customs of Honduras and Nicaragua.

The British and French treaties are substantially the same, with the exception of the preambles, some small differences in dates of existing treaties referred to therein, and some of the mechanical differences between the treaty-making methods of the two governments.

One important provision of the treaty with Great Britain requires the British government to obtain the concurrence of any of its self-governing dominions affected by the proposed arbitration.

In the course of a short executive session two senators of opposite parties, Borah of Idaho and Bacon of Georgia, voiced their opposition to the arbitration treaties in the forms submitted. Their criticism was aimed at article 3 (identical in the two treaties), which in their opinion provides for compulsory arbitration, and thus tends to deprive the United States Senate of its constitutional prerogative.

TEXT OF BRITISH TREATY

The text of the British treaty is as follows:

The United States of America and his majesty, the King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British dominions beyond the seas, emperor of India, being equally desirous of perpetuating the peace which has happily existed between the two nations as established in 1814 by the treaty of Ghent and has never since been interrupted by an appeal to arms, and which has been confirmed and strengthened in recent years by a number of treaties whereby pending controversies have been adjusted by agreement or settled by arbitration or otherwise provided for; so that now for the first time there are no important questions of difference outstanding between them, and being resolved that no future differences shall be a cause of hostilities between them or interrupt their good relations and friendship;

The high contracting parties have therefore determined, in furtherance of these ends, to conclude a treaty extending the scope and obligations of the policy of arbitration adopted in their present arbitration treaty of April 4, 1908, so as to exclude certain exceptions contained in that treaty and to provide means for the peaceful solution of all questions of difference which it shall be found impossible in future to settle by diplomacy and for that purpose they have appointed as their respective plenipotentiaries:

The President of the United States of America, Hon. Philander C. Knox, secretary of state of the United States, and his Britannic majesty, Rt. Hon. James Bryce, O. M., his ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary at Washington.

Who, having communicated to one another their full powers found in good and due form, have agreed upon the following articles:

ARTICLE I.

All differences hereafter arising between the high contracting parties which it has not been possible to adjust by diplomacy, relating to international matters in which the high contracting parties are concerned by virtue of a claim of right made by one against the other under treaty or otherwise, and which are justifiable in their nature by reason of being susceptible of decision by the application of the principles of law or equity, shall be submitted to the permanent court of arbitration established at The Hague by the convention of Oct. 18, 1907, or to some other arbitral tribunal as may be decided in each case by special agreement, which special agreement shall provide for the organization of such tribunal if necessary, define the scope of the powers of the arbitrators, the question or questions at issue, and settle the terms of reference and the procedure thereunder.

The provisions of articles 37 to 90, inclusive, of the convention for the pacific settlement of internal disputes concluded at the second peace conference at The Hague on Oct. 18, 1907, so far as applicable, and unless they are inconsistent with or modified by the provisions of the special agreement to be concluded in each case, and excepting articles 53 and 54 of such convention, shall govern the arbitration proceedings to be taken under this treaty.

The special agreement in each case shall be made on the part of the United States by the President of the United States and with the advice and consent of the Senate thereof, his majesty's government reserving the right before concluding a special agreement in any matter affecting the interests of a self-governing dominion of the British empire to obtain the concurrence therein of the government of that dominion. Such agreement shall be binding when confirmed by the two governments by an exchange of notes.

ARTICLE II.

The high contracting parties further agree to institute as occasion arises and as hereinafter provided, a joint high commission of inquiry to which, upon the request of either party, shall be referred for impartial and conscientious investigation any controversy between the parties within the scope of article I, before such controversy has been submitted to arbitration, and also any other controversy hereafter arising between them, even if they are not agreed that it falls within the scope of article I; provided, however, that such reference may be postponed until the expiration of one year after the date of the formal request therefor, in order to afford an opportunity for diplomatic discussion and adjustment of the questions in controversy, if either party desires such postponement.

Whenever a question of matter of difference is referred to the joint high commission of inquiry, as herein provided, each of the high contracting parties shall designate three of its nationals to act as members of the commission of inquiry for the purpose of such reference; or the commission may be otherwise constituted in any particular case by the terms of reference, the membership of the commission and the terms of reference to be determined in each case by an exchange of notes.

The provisions of articles 9 to 36, inclusive, of the convention for the pacific settlement of international disputes concluded at The Hague on Oct. 18, 1907, so far as applicable and unless they are inconsistent with the provisions of this treaty, or are modified by the terms of reference agreed upon in any particular case, shall govern the organization and procedure of the commission.

ARTICLE III.

The joint high commission of inquiry, instituted, in each case as provided for in article II, is authorized to examine into and report upon the particular questions or matters referred to it, for the purpose of facilitating the solution of disputes by elucidating the facts, and to define the issues presented by such questions, and also to include in its report such recommendations and conclusions as may be appropriate.

The reports of the commission shall not be regarded as decisions of the questions or matters so submitted either on the facts or on the law, and shall in no way have the character of an arbitral award. It is further agreed, however, that in cases which the parties disagree as to whether or not a difference is subject to arbitration under article I of this treaty, that question shall be submitted to the joint high commission of inquiry; and if all or all but one of the members of the commission agree and report that such difference is within the scope of article I it shall be referred to arbitration in accordance with the provisions of this treaty.

ARTICLE IV.

The commission shall have power to administer oaths to witnesses and to take evidence on oath whenever deemed necessary in any proceeding, or inquiry, or matter within its jurisdiction under this treaty; and the high contracting parties agree to give the commission the powers above mentioned and to provide for the issuance of subpoenas and for compelling the attendance of witnesses in the proceedings before the commission.

On the inquiry both sides must be heard, and each party is entitled to appoint an agent whose duty it shall be to represent his government before the commission and to present to the commission either personally or through counsel retained for that purpose such evidence and arguments as he may deem necessary and appropriate for the information of the commission.

ARTICLE V.

The commission shall meet whenever called upon to make an examination and report under the terms of this treaty, and the commission may fix such times and places for its meetings as may be necessary, subject at all times to special call or direction of the two governments. Each commissioner, upon the first joint meeting of the commission after its appointment, shall before proceeding with the work of the commission, make and subscribe a solemn declaration in writing that he will faithfully and impartially perform the duties imposed upon him under this treaty and such declaration shall be entered on the records of the proceedings of the commission.

The United States and British sections of the commission may each appoint a secretary, and these shall act as joint secretaries of the commission at its joint sessions, and the commission may employ experts and clerical assistants from time to time as it may deem advisable. The salaries and personal expenses of the commission and of the agents and counsel and of the secretaries shall be paid by their respective governments and all reasonable and necessary joint expenses of the commission incurred by it shall be paid in equal moieties by the high contracting parties.

ARTICLE VI.

This treaty shall supersede the arbitration treaty concluded between the high contracting parties on April 4, 1908, but all agreements, awards and proceedings under that treaty shall continue in force and effect and this treaty shall not affect in any way the provisions of the treaty of Jan. 11, 1909, relating to questions arising between the United States and the Dominion of Canada.

ARTICLE VII.

The present treaty shall be ratified by the President of the United States of America, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate thereof, and by his Britannic majesty. The ratifications shall be exchanged at Washington as soon as possible and the treaty shall take effect on the date of the exchange of its ratifications. It shall thereafter remain in force continuously, unless and until terminated by 24 months written notice given by either high contracting party to the other.

In faith whereof the respective plenipotentiaries have signed this treaty in duplicate and have hereunto affixed their seals.

Done at Washington the 3d day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eleven.

CALLS UPON THE BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA FOR BIRD PROTECTION

NEW YORK—William T. Hornaday, director of the Zoological Park, The Bronx, N. Y., has issued an appeal to the Boy Scouts to protect the birds and wild animals of the country. He urges them to watch sharply for the violations of the game laws and to help to bring such violators to punishment. His reason is that unless something is done quickly all the game animals and birds will be exterminated.

"I have an important message," he writes to the Boy Scouts, "to give in behalf of those who cannot speak for themselves.

"I call upon the Boy Scouts of America to enlist in the army of the defense. I call upon them to watch sharply for violators of the laws protecting wild birds and mammals, and to help in bringing violators to just punishment. In a case of violation, a citizen complainant is just as necessary as a policeman. The boys of America have it in their power to render services of incalculable value to the wild creatures that are so defenseless against modern firearms, nets and dynamite."

stop consulting law books on departmental matters," asked Mr. Davis.

"Because he was going outside his legitimate duties," the solicitor replied, "I believe I have a right to warn any employee of the department who is not connected with the solicitor's office that he must cease making legal investigations."

Mr. Davis also brought out the fact that Solicitor McCabe had ordered the seizure of five cases of "India relish" made by a firm which was opposed to the benzene of soda ruling. This seizure was made without consulting Dr. Wiley and Dr. Dunlap, the other member of the food and inspection board. The case has never been brought to trial.

Referring to the Indiana benzene of soda case, Solicitor McCabe said he had advised Dr. Wiley not to testify because he would appear as an expert and not to admit evidence on questions of fact.

LAKE ERIE WATER FOR HAMILTON

HAMILTON, Ont.—A scheme for obtaining Hamilton's water supply is being fostered by Controller Bailey, who proposes that the water be drawn from lake Erie at a point 35 miles south of the city and that it be brought here by means of gravity which is sufficient to provide all the pressure that would be needed for any purpose.

Controller Bailey is confident of the practicability of the scheme and points out that while the installation would be expensive the system would assure an unfailing supply of pure water for the city and would eliminate the present and steadily increasing cost of pumping water from lake Ontario as is now done. To put in the proposed system would cost probably $2,500,000.

His principal object in visiting Guantanamo, he says, was to inspect the sites of the proposed fortifications. No decision had been reached in this respect, he added, and it was probable it would be necessary to acquire additional land there.

It will be the greatest array of vessels ever assembled under the German flag. The fleet will comprise all classes, dreadnoughts, cruisers, destroyers and submarines. The date was announced today.

CONGRESS SELECTS AMERICA COPENHAGEN

COPENHAGEN, Denmark—At the closing sessions of the international animal protection congress, it was decided to hold the next convention in the United States in 1913, the city to be selected later.

MR. TAFT TO SPEND SIX WEEKS ON TRIP OPENING CAMPAIGN

WASHINGTON—The most important trip that President Taft has planned since he has been in the White House, in the view of Republican leaders, a trip on which he is expected to open the 1912 presidential campaign for his party, will begin on Sept. 16.

It will last at least four, and should it later be decided to extend the outing to the Pacific coast, it will be stretched into six weeks, so that the President will not get back to Beverly or Washington until November.

He will visit most of the states in the middle West, including Missouri and will make incursions into practically all of the states which have progressive Congress delegations.

The President will open the Appalachian exposition at Knoxville, Tenn., on Sept. 18, and speak at the Kansas state fair, at Hutchinson, Kan., Sept. 26. He will speak at the national G. A. R. encampment on Aug. 23.

From Rochester the President will make a jump to Hutchinson, N. Y. On the way he plans to stop at one of two cities in Michigan, at Chicago and probably will make a few addresses in Iowa.

From Hutchinson the President expects to travel into Nebraska, South Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin, where he may see Pauline Wayne, the White House cow, which is to be an exhibit at the international dairymen's exposition in Milwaukee. From this point the party may turn again into Kansas and Iowa.

FASHIONS AND THE HOUSEHOLD

SIMPLE GOWN FOR AFTERNOON TOWELS THAT ARE INVITING

Skirt four-gored and trimmed with buttons

Dainty and ornamented with taste

AFTERNOON gowns are being made in simple style and many of them show striped materials. This one gives a charming and even dressy effect, yet it means very little labor for the making. The blouse is of the peasant style, meaning very few seams to sew up, but it includes under-arm gores that are extended into the sleeves and which give freedom and relief from strain. In this case it is made with a little square yoke and worn with a lace collar, but the collar does not make a portion of the model. Undersleeves are simple strips of lace attached beneath the trimming.

The skirt is four-gored, the edges in front and back being overlapped and trimmed with buttons after an altogether attractive manner. It can be made either with a high or natural waist line. If the natural waist line is more becoming the skirt could be finished with a belt and worn either with a girdle or sash of ribbon or of silk. Such sashes, simply finished with a once-over knot at the left side, are fashionable, and many of them are edged with fringe.

For a woman of medium size the waist will require 2 1/4 yards of material 27, 1 3/4 yards 36 or 1 1/2 yards 44 inches wide, with 3/4 yard of all-over lace for the chemise, 3/4 yard of lace for the under sleeves; for the skirt will be needed 5 1/2 yards 27, 5 yards 36, 4 yards 44 inches wide when material has figure or nap, but when material has no up and down, 3 1/2 yards 36 or 2 3/4 yards 44 inches wide will suffice. A pattern of the waist (7060), in sizes from 34 to 44 bust, or of the skirt pattern (6898), sizes 22 to 32 waist, can be had at any May Mantion agency or will be sent by mail. Address 132 East Twenty-third street, New York, or Masonic Temple, Chicago.

A TOWEL is a thing usually hard to ornament with taste, and yet keep dainty and handsome, writes Besie Berry Grabouskie in the Chicago Inter Ocean.

We've had the hemstitched and scalloped edges and insets of lace and drawnwork, but my idea now is that which is far simpler and more durable, too. The towel of today—the "chic" towel—has a little color that appeals, in a measure, to every one.

For a man's room it may be very simple, not even a padded initial or monogram. I visited the other day where there were two sons, in a family that believed in the individual (room) towels, as all else. The two sets of towels for these rooms were hemmed in a deep hem—some hemstitched and some featherstitched, on a soft huck of medium width, which was bought by the yard. One room's set was done in "reds," the other in "king's blue," and both were done in fine luster wash threads, about size 25. They had diagonally, in the left corner, about two inches from the hem, a peculiar, rather rough interlaced running monogram, with letters of a single line and were carried out in simple "overlap" outline.

Overlap outline is done by using rather short stitches and letting one stitch lap back half-way the preceding stitch. This forms a neat evenly packed cord, carrying a clear outline. That was all the work on them, but you cannot imagine its neatness and taste. It is almost needless to say every member of the family might have her own towels in her favorite color or to correspond with her room or bathroom coloring. It is quickly done, durable and has a style, though simple, all its own.

Another towel little more distinctive was in a gray blue of three shades. The towel was rather large and the design was a basket done in the two darkest shades, in slightly padded satin work. The border was in two rows of heavy chain, using a lighter shade, while the leaves and garlands of flowers were merely outlined and then filled in with plain huck darning, picking up the threads of huck, the center flowers being lightest and getting larger out toward the ends of the sprays. The basket was at least two and one half inches high.

The edge of this towel was scalloped, being padded (lengthwise always) first very slightly. Too much padding is not good taste for towels. The scallop was of the middle shade.

Another towel had a design in a conventional cornflower running straight up from the border and all in blue, while another was of white daisies with gold centers and pale green stems and leaves, very little of which showed.

SHE LOVES THE LACE COUNTER

Here one woman gets remnants at a bargain

I ALWAYS go for the lace baskets," said an exquisitely dressed woman the other day. "There are often charming remnants of lace at half price which make up into all sorts of fascinating trimmings and odds and ends."

The well-dressed woman will appreciate the truth of this particular woman's remarks. Lace is always useful; beautiful lace beautifies whatever it is associated with. Never probably in the history of fashion was lace as much worn as it is at present. In the morning, the coat and skirt costume is incomplete without the frill or jabot of lace.

To buy these frills and jabots in the shops is an expensive matter, but when remnants of lace are picked up for half price and then made up at home the price is brought within the reach of the modest purse. Those who can afford it, buy real lace. If that is impossible the best imitations only should be bought or none at all. Cheap lace you are better without. A fold around the neck well boned, a frill or gracefully draped jabot, and one has a finish for the somewhat shabby blouse which transforms the costume when worn with coat and skirt.

Another use for remnants of lace is for trimming of frocks and hats. A fad at present is to use bands and appliques of lace under chignon or tunic. The effect through is very good. For this purpose heavy and effective laces are the best. Imagine a gown of delft blue, so popular at present. It has an over-slip of blue nylon and across the bust and on the sleeves are bands of file. Right in front there is a somewhat large plaque of jeweled trimming, glimmering through the nylon, and the whole makes a lovely and dressy costume.

Never was more lace worn on hats, says the Montreal Star. Many hats from the most expensive milliners are trimmed with nothing but lace. A French model seen recently was of fine white straw lined with black. The sole trimming was an immense upstanding choux of killed lace tremendously effective. Another had a flat bow of lace with one single rose. Still another a quill of plaited lace giving the effect of a willow plume.

SHE IS FIRST LADY OF STATE

Kansas schoolma'am has romantic career in Oklahoma

ALTHOUGH Mrs. Fred Sutton doesn't happen to be the wife of the Governor she is nevertheless known as "the first lady of Oklahoma," at any rate to the Oklahomans. She acquired her title not by marriage, but by other kinds of personal achievement.

It was she, says a writer in Human Life, who organized the women pioneers of Oklahoma into "The Women of Eighty-nine," who are to state what the Daughters of the Golden West are to California and the F. F. V.'s to Virginia. Mrs. Sutton is its founder and president.

She conceived and with the help of the women of Oklahoma City carried into execution the plan of the Aprilis Fiesta, that spring function in Oklahoma City, which corresponds to the Mardi Gras carnival of New Orleans and the Veiled Prophet of St. Louis and the Priests of Pallas of Kansas City.

It was she who proposed a monument which is building to the memory of Capt. W. S. Couch, the first mayor of Oklahoma City, and who in the pre-state days spent all his substance and time in the interests of statehood. He lived at Washington on 10 cents a day while working for the admittance to the sisterhood of states of the then territory.

Mrs. Sutton may be described as the foremost woman in Oklahoma. Yet 22 years ago she was a schoolma'am indigent to Kansas, who made a run with the other settlers to take a claim on the newly opened land. At the same time Fred Sutton, a young man from Michigan, made the hardest run in the great category of mad dashes for homesteads. He sacrificed his horse on a 13-mile dash to a claim near Guthrie, but the claim marked the turn of his fortunes from the shallows of poverty to the full stream of affluence.

Meanwhile the school teacher, having literally pitched her tent on the claim and slept on the couch of her own making, a pile of brush, opened the first school in Oklahoma City in the back room of a warehouse. Eventually, while both were still poor, she met and married Fred Sutton, one of the school trustees. He is the president of one bank, director in another and director in several industrial concerns, chiefly a huge packing house.

CELLAR SCREENS

Flies and mosquitoes are prone to gather at the bottom of the areaway leading into the cellar, eager to get in the house the moment the screen door is opened. To thwart the unwelcome visitors, a clever housewife has hit upon a system of double screen doors, says the Newark News. In addition to the usual screen door at the bottom of the steps, she has placed a screen door over the steps as a whole. This lifts up just as the outer door does, and makes it well nigh impossible for flies or mosquitoes to gather outside the inner door.

FOR THE NECK

The new jabots, and especially the new graceful Georgian fall of lace, necessitate a neckband and the latest collar has an all-round frill of plaited lace mounted on a narrow guipure insertion, says the New York Press.

New designs in dainty collars of real lace and Irish crochet, with high-necked Honiton samples, almost cover the shoulders and show a deep square back and front, while pretty black-and-white collars, embroidered here and there in gold or aluminum thread, are very smart.

TRY COCOANUT

If fond of cocoanut, try sprinkling the baked apple for breakfast with a little shredded cocoanut, says the Louisville Herald. Eat this with rice as a cereal, substituting cocoanut milk for other milk or cream.

TRIED RECIPES

STRING BEAN SALAD
STRING and cut young, tender beans into three strips. Plunge them into boiling water and cook them for 20 minutes. Drain and throw them into cold water until thoroughly chilled. Again drain and pour boiling unsalted water over them. Cook for 10 or 15 minutes longer. Drain and stand away to cool. By this method of cooking the beans become tender without being mushy. Serve them on crisp lettuce leaves with chopped parsley and French dressing over them.

SPONGE PUDDING
Beat the yolks of four eggs until thick, add gradually one cup of sugar, beating all the time; then add three tablespoonfuls of cold water. Put one and a half tablespoonfuls of cornstarch into a cup, add one and one half teaspoons baking powder, and fill up the cup with pastry flour; sift these together three times, then add to the eggs and sugar. Beat until well mixed, and add the whites of four eggs, beaten stiff; add one teaspoonful of vanilla. Bake in a long tin in a moderate oven. When done and cooled, cut in squares and serve with lemon sauce.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

RAISED DOUGHNUTS
Scald one pint of new milk. When lukewarm stir in one cupful of sugar, one half cupful butter, one half cupful of liquid yeast and flour enough to make a rather thin batter. Let rise and add one teaspoonful cinnamon and flour to roll. Cut and let rise again. Fry in boiling fat.

OLD-FASHIONED GINGERCAKE
Melt one cupful of butter with two cupfuls of molasses. Pour it hot over one quart of flour. Dissolve one teaspoonful of soda in a little hot water and add to the other ingredients, then put in enough flour to roll the dough out neatly. Make it thin, cut in rounds and bake quickly.

TO ROAST A LEG OF PORK
Choose a small leg of fine young pork. Cut slit in the knuckle with a sharp knife; fill the space with sage and onions, chopped fine, salt and pepper. When half done score the skin in slices, but do not cut deeper than the outer rind. Serve apple sauce and potatoes with it.

QUEEN OF PUDDINGS
Beat light the yolks of three eggs, add small cupful sugar, two thirds cupful raisins, four crackers crumbed, one and one half pints sweet milk, stir well, flavor with vanilla, bake in pudding dish in a vessel of hot water. When done spread jelly over top, also the whites of the three eggs beaten to a stiff froth with two tablespoonfuls powdered sugar. Return to oven and brown. When cold serve with cream.—Indianapolis Star.

TO MEND BASKET

If your market basket, clothes basket or waste paper basket of willow shows a few loose ends put it to soak for 20 minutes or half an hour in lukewarm water. A good way to do is to put the basket into the bathtub, resting it on the part that is to be repaired, then turn in enough water to soak this part. The important thing is to get the willow ends soft and pliable. When this is accomplished the strips can be readily bent back into place, and if you push them in firmly they will stay in place when dry. Never try to bend the willow strips while they are dry as they will be sure to snap off.—Good Housekeeping.

CANAPE CAREME

A fanciful concoction is "canape Careme," which calls for the chopped meat of half a small lobster, a truffle and two tiny pickles. Dredge them with pepper and salt and mix all with two tablespoonfuls of mayonnaise dressing. Spread the mixture over round pieces of toast about two inches in diameter and decorate the center of each canape with half a teaspoonful of caviare.—New York Tribune.

SAVE LEMON HULLS

Save all the lemon hulls, drop them into the vessel in which you boil your tea towels and it will whiten them wonderfully, and there will be a clean freshness about them that is desirable.—Washington Herald

COSTLY BAGS OF PARIS WOMEN

Exquisite decorations in gold and embroidery

AT the present moment the true Parisian woman would as soon think of going without gloves and hats as of appearing on any of the frequent boulevards without being attached to some wonderful combination of embroidery, brocade and gold and silver lace which the American calls a bag and the French woman a sac, writes a correspondent of the New York Sun.

The particular feature sought for in the making of these handbags is that they must not bulge. Capacious they are and they may contain much, but they must seem to be empty. Every material has been used for these sacs—leather, snake skin, velvet, silk, satin, tapestry, lace, insertions. The bags vary in length from a quarter to a half yard and some are even longer. They hang from the shoulder right or left, according to choice, and they may fall below the knee.

Four or five hundred francs is asked for some of the most elaborate of these, and examining them closely you will find monograms, coats of arms and various designs worked in embroidery. Big buttons, each a work of art in itself, hold the flap loop; the cord is twisted and tied and ornamented along its length with other buttons, and many tassels of gold or silver threads swing on the outer edge. The shape is at your selection—octagonal, square, round.

Many of the little shops along the Rue de Rivoli and Rue St. Honore have eight and ten embroiderers at work on these sacs. You can get a very smart one here, all hand work, for $15, or you may pay several times as much. Two are being made for an American woman. One is of soft brown material like a moleskin in dun. It is heavily embroidered in gold roses, which like the garniture of the edges is in a dull tint. The other is of mauve satin covered with an embroidery of silver fleur de lis conventionalized and in the intricate pattern the monogram of the recipient is cleverly hidden.

As you are admiring these a third is ordered by an English woman; this is to be of light blue kid glaze covered with a design of flowered baskets, the favorite pattern, so all French shopkeepers tell you, of Marie Antoinette; from the basket creep garlands of tiny pink roses on which humming birds are poised.

A dark brown velvet is appliqued with beetles made of tortoise shell, the wings marked by the natural coloring of the material. The subdued coloring prevents the design from seeming too bizarre.

A lesson in the graces and coquettishness of life may be acquired by watching the Parisian with her latest adornment. It is as eloquent in her hands as the fan of a Spanish woman, the mantilla of a Mexican or the scarlet rose of the Italian signorina.

WHITE SKIRTS AND DARK COATS

Combination more apparent each week

THE idea of wearing white skirts and dark coats is gaining each week. One hears of a great number of such suits arranged for the out-of-town holidays. The Norfolk jackets are sometimes chosen, but other women prefer the short, loose blazer coat, which fastens below the waist with three buttons and has wide revers.

A favorite coat of this type is in blue serge, with smooth surface or with a coarse twill running through it. The buttons are of white pearl, quite large and carved, and there is a sailor collar with wide revers that reach to the waist line made with white serge to match the skirt.

This skirt is plainly made, quite straight and slender, with a yard and a half hem, and an attached panel back and front. These are stitched down to within six inches of the foot line, and flap loose like a swinging sash. They are quite graceful, as they give an effect of width to the narrow skirt.

The sailor collar with long revers made of white serge, or Shetland wool, or the new herringbone mohair, is quite the fashion added to dark coats. These can be made separately and buttoned or basted into the coat for the time being, but they do not look well over another collar of the coat material.

It is better to make a coat without any collar these days if one wishes to play tricks with it, such as adding a white or green or blue collar and revers to carry out some chosen color scheme. It is quite easy to finish off the neck with a silk binding.

Any woman who is at all fastidious in the lines of her clothes will know that two collars do not rest well against the neck and shoulders. The upper one will bulge at the inside line and will fall like a ruffle at its lower edge.

The addition of white or cream sailor collars to dark blouses and suits is in full vigor. Every one prophesies that it will not last through next autumn, but I do not see why that should affect the present mode, says a fashion writer. A sailor collar is certainly a most agreeable addition to many kinds of coats and blouses. It redeems the dullness of a dark blue serge; it makes a black satin frock smart enough for a luncheon or an informal dinner, and it adds greatly to the appearance of a white linen suit.

CUSHIONS SPEAK

Cushions should be as carefully chosen as window curtains or door hangings; they should reflect the general tone of the room and in one or two places perhaps add a telling spot of color or a properly contrasted note. If figured or designed they should be subdued and blended in tone, not insistent, unless in the case of flowered chintz and cretonne, where they are planned as the spot of interest in the room and made to match the draperies. Even here they should be toned down by a number of cushions of plain colors. Pillows that are designed so as to stand only one way are bad for two reasons: first they usually hint at a realism that is seldom good decoration, and second they are frequently turned upside down and thereby attract undue attention.—Exchange.

TAKES OFF RUST

A rusty grate can be cleaned with little trouble if it be black-leaded and then left for 24 hours, or even for a couple of days, says the Washington Herald. The black lead will absorb the rust and the steel can then be polished in the ordinary way.

LETTING FURNISHED SUITES

One of the ways for women to get a livelihood

IN THE big cities there has opened up a means of earning a livelihood which is unique and often exceedingly profitable. Many women find that when they are left alone in the world at 50, or in later years, their only asset is a houseful of good furniture. To make this furniture bring returns forms the business problem of a number of clever women who live in crowded centers.

During the winter months in the southern cities and during the summer months in northern cities there is always a floating population which does not trouble itself with household goods. Such people live mostly at hotels, but there is a rapidly increasing number who prefer a well furnished apartment, where, for a short time, they may do housekeeping.

The women with good furniture will find it profitable to rent an apartment and sublet it to such tenants. Often a one hundred dollar advance on the original rent may be obtained. It should be understood, however, that cheap furniture and cheap apartments are not

HOME PICTURES

Many people make the mistake of thinking that a good picture will look well in any place and in any style of frame.

Others recognize the fact that fruit pictures look well only in the dining room and that pictures of authors belong in the library or wherever books are kept.

Even when the subject of the picture is in accord with the room, such particulars as the angle at which the light will strike the picture, the height to hang it, the background and the kind of frame must be considered.

Few pictures can be shown to advantage against a large flowered, highly colored wall paper. Test out the pictures and see which ones are most effective hung flat against the wall, for tilting destroys the high lights in some pictures.

Find out whether the light will make a glare on the picture, making it almost invisible at certain hours of the day. Notice, too, whether shadows in the picture point away from the light as would be natural.

Two hooks are better than one for hanging, avoiding the break in lines caused by having the wire come to a point on one hook. Many things go to make up the study of picture hanging, but once understood, pictures seem to take on a new meaning and value.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

wanted. The furniture must be good, substantial and up-to-date, and the apartment should be selected in a good neighborhood.

One woman who makes her living in this way, uses a certain amount of her profits each year to add to her stock. She buys new curtains, new rugs, replenishes the linen. When new tenants come in they find everything in order. Not a cracked dish or a ragged towel.

It must be remembered, however, that the business of sub-letting a furnished apartment must not be conducted in a slipshod fashion. Success follows only when you can put your apartment in competition with the better class of hotels. Sometimes it pays to buy new furniture for this purpose, if there is sufficient capital to make such an expense possible.

Domestic training may often be used profitably in furnishing meals to the employees of factories and other large plants. One woman has the contract to serve lunches for one hundred and fifty employees of a big factory. The lunches were necessarily small, but by good management a profit can be made. The needs of that particular class of people have to be studied and their appetites consulted.

Almost any woman who has managed her own home can manage that of some one else, or can provide meals for families which are not her own.

Among Books and Their Writers

JAPANESE BAR NAMES FROM LIST

Only Western Authors Who Hold Universally Tested Views Permitted to Give Their Message Currency

CLASSIC MASTERS FREELY ACCEPTED

IF East and West, Occident and Orient are to be brought together in their views of life and destiny, the mediatorial work of great literature will be influential. Within the memory of men not yet venerable there has been a vast extension and popularization of oriental thinkers' masterpieces in forms accessible to western readers, so that no would-be learner need lack for handbooks that will introduce him to the faiths that have satisfied millions of Asiatics and that still do. Per contra, the eagerness with which natives of India, China and Japan have sought out either the originals or translations of the religious and literary masterpieces of the classical or modern European world, has only been surpassed of late by the interest they have shown in adaptation of their governmental forms to those of western democracies.

But a handbook cannot take the place of a masterpiece, and in the transplanting of the intellectual and spiritual treasures of a people, much is gained by as close reflection as is possible of the masterpiece itself. Thus to read that Shakespeare's "Hamlet" was recently played at the Imperial theater, Tokio; that it was staged in the European-American style; that the female parts were played by women; and that the translation was unusually faithful and close in its rendering of the ideas of the Bard of Avon into the vernacular of the actors and spectators, is far more encouraging than to know that innumerable books about Shakespeare, his art and his philosophy of life, are circulating among the Japanese. These may be admirable in their way; but what is needed for an appreciation of Shakespeare both as playwright and thinker is a chance to see him acted, to hear him speak through immortal characters of his genius. So will it be with other attempts at the Imperial theater to render western plays after the western fashion. Through the medium of the stage and the play as well as by the preaching of missionaries and the teachings of educators will the occidental heaven the oriental lump.

Censorship Established

But it is to be a selective process, if the Imperial authorities have their way. Recent French, Scandinavian and Slavonic literature, which emphasizes "naturalistic" aspects of life, which exalts individualism at the expense of the family, which tends to destroy reverence for dynasties and promulgate socialistic views, has been censored; and native authors, inclined to follow these models, have been disciplined. How far this rigorous supervision of the mental pabulum of the people is to go, time alone will reveal. Intimations that it exists have only recently come to the Occident's attention. Japan has maintained of late years an exceedingly liberal policy toward religions, and has been far more tolerant than Russia. She apparently draws the line at ethics, and is not in a mood for any increase of literature, either native or imported, that will weaken the old loyalties. Shakespeare with his Rosalind and Imogen will be welcomed. Ibsen with his Hedda Gabbler is not desired, nor Tolstoi with his negation of duty to the state and his preachments against war.

World Opinion Is Force

Even where there is intellectual accord with the conservative position which the Japanese government is taking and equally cordial dislike for the moral anarchy of much of latter-day European literature, there will be a question in the minds of many Occidental onlookers whether the policy of suppression adopted by Japan is the best one, tactically considered. It simplifies the situation temporarily. But if European experience is any fair indication of the course of events it makes the ultimate conflict for liberty of thought and speech all the more severe and sanguinary.

Of one thing there is no doubt. Europe and America will not view with complaisant judgment any excessive use of physical force or other severe punitive measures against Japanese who are insisting on the necessity of their nation coming wholly into the stream of the world's life. A world's public opinion faces any nation today, that even in assumed self-preservation tries to gag thought and manacle literature. There are better ways of fighting realism and anarchy than by imprisoning realists and philosophical anarchists.

LITERARY NOTES

IT IS intimated that letters by James Russell Lowell, which Charles Eliot Norton declined to use when editing Lowell's correspondence, are soon to be published. They are said to relate to his experiences while minister to Spain, and to a previous offer of the post at St. Petersburg, which he declined. Mr. Norton had an antipathy to publicity that involved any breach of confidence or that might become the occasion for controversy. His editing of a correspondence was always likely to err on the side of privacy rather than exposure, he being a "gentleman of the old school," as Mr. Froude found out.

The current issue of the Journal of American History, published quarterly, is valuable for its new data respecting the ancestry of Abraham Lincoln, and for its reproduction of a large number of the best and rarest portraits of that statesman. Many of the finest statues by Cyrus A. Dallin, the Arlington, Mass., sculptor, are reproduced, especially those which illustrate his facility in rendering the idea of the civil war and the traditions and aspirations of the aboriginal red man of North America. This journal devotes an exceptionally large amount of space to origins of British settlers in America, and pays unusual attention to heraldry and genealogy.

Retirement of Francis Hackett from charge of the literary page of the Chicago Post's Friday edition brings to a close a connection that has interested eastern readers as well as local admirers. He leaves to devote himself to "independent literary work." Another interesting change in the field of journalism is the resignation of John O'Hara Cosgrave as editor of Everybody's Magazine. Ten years of this Australian's guidance of the magazine have brought success and influence that have been quite unusual. Whether the recent consolidation of Everybody's with the Butterick publications implies other changes in the personnel of the editorial staff remains to be disclosed.

Attention is being called to the fact that the newly published edition of Swinburne's poems, edited by Watts-Dunton, omits most of the poems of passion and sensuous appeal which first attracted the attention of the world to the singer. It is said that this exclusion, and the retention of poems devoted chiefly to

LITERARY NOTES OF LONDON

LONDON—Now that the holiday weeks are upon us, it is not likely that there will be much to chronicle about new books until about the middle of September. Nevertheless, the approaching season promises to be an exceptionally busy one, partly due to the removal of such disconcerting influences as the coronation and a somewhat prolonged political crisis. Publishers naturally hope that Parliament will not have to reassemble this side of Christmas, as if this hope is fulfilled there will be a clean field for books and a profitable season will result.

At this time publishers prefer to maintain silence about their forthcoming productions, even those books which are well advanced towards publication. We hear, however, of a biography of Sir Charles Dilke, edited by his literary executrix, Miss Gertrude Tuckwell. Sir Charles not only kept a diary but it was as well a voluminous writer, so that the "Life" may be expected to be intimate and authoritative, and of somewhat exceptional personal and public significance.

Another biography of a modern man is the "Life of Sir George Newman," which Miss Hulda Friedericks has in preparation. Sir George was best known as the founder of the Westminster Gazette.

The anniversary of Tennyson's birthday is on Aug. 6, and as usual there will be celebrations of a somewhat elaborate character at the village of Somersby, in Lincolnshire, where the poet was born. Aug. 6, is a Sunday and a special sermon will be preached by the bishop of Lincoln in the village church. On the following day Canon Rawnsley will deliver a lecture which will recall "Memories of Tennyson," and Cuming Walters of Manchester will speak on "The Influence of Lincolnshire Upon the Writings of the Laureate." It is expected that many will make a pilgrimage to the poet's birthplace on that day.

It is perhaps not out of place here to recall the fact that Tennyson made some remarkable prophecies in his poetry, some of which are already in sight of fulfillment. Two such prophecies occur in "Locksley Hall." One dealing with the subject of aerial navigation runs: "For I dip into the future, far as human eyes could see, Saw the Vision of the world, and all the wonders that would be; Saw the heavens fill with commerce, Argosies of magic sails."

The other, dealing with the subject of universal peace, is as follows: "Till the war-drum throbb'd no longer, And the battle flags were fur'd, the sea and to political liberty, were ordered by Swinburne.

Garden lovers and makers will anticipate with zest "The Lure of the Garden," soon to be issued by the Century Company, in which delightful articles and illustrations appearing in the magazine during the past year will be gathered up. Hildegarde Hawthorne writes the text; the illustrations will be by Guerin, Parrish, Ivanowski and Anna Whelan Betts.

American women are coming to be prominent as wives of successful British authors as well as of well-known political leaders and representatives of the nobility. William Caine, who by the way is a grandson of the delightful Manx poet and letter writer, T. E. Brown, has an American wife, Miss Edith Gordon Walker of Boston, to whom he credits much of his success as the author of "The Confectioners." "A Pris-er in the Parliament of man, the Federation of the world, There the common sense of most shall hold a fretful realm in awe, And the kindly earth shall slumber, lapt in Universal law."

A. A. Jack, who occupies the chair of English literature at Queens College, London, is responsible for a new book which will appear entitled "Prose and Poetry: Being Essays on Modern English Poetry." The essays are variously entitled, as for instance, "Gray" (social or prose poetry); "Burns" (natural or spontaneous basic poetry); "Wordsworth" (basic or elementary poetry); "Byron" (rhetorical poetry), and "Meredith" (intellectual poetry).

Murray will publish shortly "Graveyard Manors or Twenty Years' Work Round an Old Manor House." When it is mentioned that the said work is that done by the owner, Sir William Robinson, the author of "The English Flower Garden," enough will have been said to insure the book a large circle of readers among garden lovers. The book is illustrated by fine wood engravings and colotypes with etched plate.

Punch has just celebrated its seventieth birthday and is receiving the congratulations of its contemporaries on its successful maintenance of the best traditions in humorous journalism.

The Associated Booksellers met at Cambridge recently and various festivities were arranged. Robert Bowes, an acknowledged authority on Cambridge life and letters, presided at the inevitable banquet. Speaking for "Science and Literature" proposed by John Murray, Sir Joseph Thomson said that the university was giving up reading for lectures, while the undergraduate studied short cuts to his subject.

A complete edition of the works of Bjornson and a new biography of him will be published in the autumn by Herr S. Fischer in Berlin.

The Thackeray centenary was celebrated the other day by a garden party in the garden and hall of the Middle Temple. Lady Ritchie and the editor of the "Cornhill" magazine were responsible for the party, which was voted a great success.

Thackeray was himself editor of the "Cornhill" from 1860-2 and although he contributed such popular writings as "Denis Duval" and the "Roundabout Papers," his unbusinesslike habits prevented him from being a good editor. At the concert given in the Middle Temple hall, the selections included three songs by Thackeray "At the Church Gate," "The Mahogany Tree," and "Little Billee."

oner in Spain" and "The Revolt at Roskelly's."

A contributor to the Bookman, telling of American literature and its appreciation by Danes, makes it clear that Whitman, Frank Norris and distinctively American writers have far more vogue in Denmark than those authors who are simply replicas of European thinkers and stylists.

American readers of "Comments of Bagshot," by J. A. Spender of the Westminster Gazette, will recall the freshness and brilliancy of the book and be glad to know that a supplementary collection of essays on old aspects of contemporary life is soon to be published in the United States by Henry Holt & Co.

De Morgan's next novel, "Bianca," will be published in October.

Breslau University's honorary degree conferred on Prof. Benjamin Bacon of Yale is high recognition of his erudition and originality as a New Testament scholar and critic.

An authorized "write up" of William J. Locke credits him with the extraordinary good sense of refusing to judge the United States by its urban centers, and preferring to base his opinions on life as he saw it in villages, towns and the smaller cities. He especially likes the New England village, with "a charm of its own." Mr. Locke thus far has laid the plot of his tales in Europe. His use of American scenes will be watched for in a kindly mood of anticipation.

Owen Johnson is at work on a book to be called "The Varmint at Yale." Is the series to be prolonged during a professional school and life career?

Mary Johnston's "The Long Roll" has been numbered among books to be put in crews' libraries of the ships of the United States navy. The Stonewall Jackson attitude toward war makes a kind of fighting man difficult to defeat.

Elsie Barker, whose verse has won merited attention, has been traveling through the Holy Land collecting material for stories from the New Testament, to be published in the fall.

M. JUSSERAND HONORED COPENHAGEN—M. Jussérand, French ambassador to the United States, arrived here Sunday. He will dine with the King today. It is believed that he will remain at his post in Washington until the present ambassador leaves London, where he will succeed.

PLANS FOR CARNIVAL AT REVERE BEACH ARE NEARLY COMPLETED

Plans are nearing completion for the annual carnival at Revere beach, Sept. 5 to 9, beginning at 8 o'clock each evening, patterned somewhat after the Mardi Gras of New Orleans.

The metropolitan park commission has issued an exclusive permit to amusement proprietors for this event which gives them the right to exclude all vehicles on the nights given.

An expense fund of $10,000 has been raised. Not more than $3000 has been expended on any previous occasion.

Boston will concentrate four or five of its best bands for music every night, and a special king and queen will be selected by the committee for each evening, except the closing night, when the amusement proprietors will have the privilege of naming them.

There will be a large number of floats in the daily parade, and among the many organizations taking part will be the Knights of Pythias, Massachusetts Volunteer Militia, Order of Elks, Veteran Firemen's Association and several others.

The committee in charge of these event is composed of Arthur Hills (president), Charles L. Ridgeway (treasurer), Fred Pearce, Charles H. Brown, Messrs. Trask, Sandler, Rotheringham, Cobditt, Hauson, Goodwin and Badaracco.

The Elevated railway has donated the use of its car barns for decorating and housing the floats.

OPEN-AIR BOAT CARRIES OUT 235

The floating hospital took out 235 persons today. There were 58 mothers and eight children on the boat. The cruise was well up in the harbor owing to fog. It is Bessie Weston Lowney and Harry Nelson Lowney day, and the subscriber is Walter M. Lowney. Tonight will be First Parish Sunday school, Brookline, night, and the school is the subscriber.

WITH OUR ADVERTISERS

With such an offering as that made by the Shepard Norwell Company August is none too early to purchase furs. The coming winter promises to be as much of a fur season as last. That being so there will be a rush for such garments on the point of style as well as comfort as soon as the cold weather begins. She who has hers already selected has an advantage over the sister who is going from store to store. When the first cold snap comes she is ready, and so equipped has only a sense of enjoyment of the crisp, sharp air.

By marking goods 25 per cent under later prices the company makes it an additional advantage to purchase now and has also arranged that bills need not be paid until Nov. 1. Those not having cash accounts are naturally called upon to make a cash payment at the time of purchase, but this is only 25 per cent of the whole. The garments are also safely stored in cold storage until wanted.

According to accounts from fashion leaders, black furs will be again in the lead, black fox, black lynx and skunk. Mink is always beautiful, always in good style and no one will make a mistake in purchasing it. These furs are shown in all the new designs of coats, shawls, neckpieces and mufflers. The pill-muff is to lead this year as last. The small pieces will be most in demand in the early winter, but the comfort of the long fur coats and the fur shawls when the season is advanced and the cold settles down in earnest is so great they will probably be in greater favor this year than ever before. They are always a valuable asset to have on hand; they can be worn for years, carried over from one to the other and reserved for specially cold spells. They are shown at this sale in black and the natural brown Russian pony, marmot, mink-blend muskrat, Russian sable, squirrel, caracul, Hudson seal, Japanese mink, beaver and Persian lamb. Among them are fur and fur-lined coats for carriage and street wear.

A holiday without chocolates is one of those things that is not to be thought of. How it came about no one knows, but it is as certain as summer flowers that a day in the woods, by the water or upon it, that any day with a vacation spell loses part of its charm if this dainty confection does not occupy a place in it. The making of chocolate candy has grown to marvelous proportions in the last few years. It is in all grades and endless variety, new kinds constantly being brought out. The chocolate touch inside or outside or scattered all through seems to make everything good and most things better, and the taste for it is growing. The manufacturer of chocolate candy today prefers to pack it at once in boxes to avoid handling and insure each piece to be in proper condition when it reaches the consumer. These boxes are gay little affairs, quite in keeping with the holiday spirit.

There is a great difference in chocolates and the way they are prepared. The Regal can be depended upon to be always good. They are put up in three brands, the Lady Mabelle, the "B" rose and the Wilhelmina. They can be bought at drug and confectionery stores and of number of the records are of monologues more or less witty, from old favorites. When these instruments first came out the demand was for the lighter and so-called humorous sketches, but now the call is strongly in favor of merit, of compositions of recognized worth by singers and instrumentalists who have been received by the highest critics, and of classics by master artists. Those interested are always welcome at the sales-rooms to hear them.

The book lover on the lookout to enlarge his library and secure for his own possession choice books and editions will find much to please him at the bookshop of W. A. Butterfield, 59 Bromfield street. Gathered together there are many fine books, both new and old. The bibliophile sometimes finds things for which he has long sought tucked away on the shelves, and from time to time expensive editions can be picked up at a very reasonable price.

THE BETTY ALDEN IN ON SCHEDULE

Capt. J. T. Galiano of the excursion steamer Betty Alden, which runs between Boston and Plymouth, today said, contrary to report, that his steamer was not obliged to anchor during the night with 500 passengers on board. The vessel tied up at her berth at Rowe's wharf today and Captain Galiano said she reached port from Plymouth last evening only 20 minutes behind schedule time.

As is her custom on Sunday evenings the steamer after disembarking her passengers headed down stream to Falmouth, where she tied up awaiting orders. Later she proceeded to Crow Point, where she lay for the night.

BATTERY MARCHES 90 MILES TO CAMP

STATE CAMP, SEA GIRT, N. J.—The routine drills of the annual state encampment, which was begun here two weeks ago, were enlivened Sunday afternoon by the arrival of battery B of the field artillery, covered with dust but enthusiastic, after having marched from Camden, a distance of 90 miles, since last Friday, making two bivouacs on the way.

Navy Notes

Acting Secretary of the Navy Winthrop has made answer to the amended petition of George L. Foreman of Virginia, filed in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, asking the court to direct, by a writ of mandamus to the secretary of the navy, that his name be placed on the register of retired officers of the navy as a paymaster's clerk from June 27, 1910.

In his petition Mr. Foreman alleges service as paymaster's clerk and in other clerical capacities more or less continuously since 1865, and asserts that by appointment as paymaster's clerk Aug. 14, 1893, he is entitled, under Section 1444 of the Revised Statutes and the act of May 13, 1908, to be retired as an officer of the navy. The department contents that he was an employee in the classified civil service and not in the naval service.

According to a report received at the navy department the delay encountered in overhauling the United States steamship North Dakota has been overcome and the vessel will be ready to join the fleet not later than Aug. 20.

There is regret at the department that the new naval collier Neptune, built by contract for the government at Sparrow's Point, Md., did not come up to contract speed requirements on the recent trial trip over the Rockland course under the observation of the board of inspection and survey for ships. The difficulty, it seems, was with the propellers. The department will probably allow the contractors another trial.

SALES BY WILLIAM A. E. FINLAY

The brokerage office of William A. E. Finlay reports the passing of final papers in the sale of the property at 17 University road, Brookline, for Herbert F. Nelson to the New England Trust Company, trustee. The lot contains more than 4000 square feet of land assessed at $3000, and a new three-apartment brick and stone house on the site is assessed at $12,000. The price paid by the new owner was above the assessed valuation.

Agreements have been signed through the same broker in the sale of the two wide front brick and stone houses at 12 and 14 Colbourne crescent, Brookline, for Robert M. Goode. The lot contains about 5500 square feet of land. The price paid was $33,000. The purchaser's name is withheld for the present.

Agreements have been signed in the sale of the property at 1, 2, 3 and 4 Oakdale square, and 8, 8A and 10 Oakdale street, Jamaica Plain, near the Jamaica Plain railroad station, for Louis Arnold. The buildings consist of three double frame houses and one large single house and are assessed for $17,600. The lot, containing 27,200 square feet, is assessed for $6800, making a total assessed valuation of $24,400. The purchaser, Philip Seigel, buys for investment.

William A. E. Finlay has purchased the estate at 10 Salem street, Woburn, from E. B. Blanchard et al. The property consists of 11,000 square feet of land, taxed for $3200, a frame private dwelling and summer house, assessed at $3600, making a total assessed valuation of $6800. This estate was for a number of years the home of the late Judge Parker L. Converse of Woburn.

OPPOSE MEDFORD MAN FOR HOUSE

With the taking out of papers for representative in the twenty-seventh Middlesex district, Representative Wilton B. Fay of Medford faces a contest for the nomination on the part of the residents of Winchester. In this district it has been the custom for Medford and Winchester to alternate every two years. Winchester polls a larger vote in the district than Medford and is opposed to the Medford man holding office for a third term.

PEACE SERVICE AT NORTHEAST

EAST NORTHEAST, Mass.—Three thousand Northeast conference delegates joined in a special thanksgiving service Sunday for the recent signing of the general arbitration treaty in Washington.

CORDIAL GREETING AWAITS ANCIENTS ON LONDON VISIT

London awaits with great interest the visit of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston to England next year, to attend the three hundred and seventy-fifth anniversary of the Honorable Artillery Company of the English city, and the London papers are already commenting very favorably on the visit, the London City Press saying:

"The Ancients are, of course, an offshoot of the City regiment. Their founder was one Captain Keayne, for many years a leading member of the home regiment, and when he sailed across the Atlantic in the seventeenth century, most his first action was to establish the Ancients on lines practically identical with the constitution of his own corps. From that day to this the Ancients have flourished, and their history has not been one whit less interesting or brilliant than that of the Honorable Artillery itself."

The committee which reported in favor of accepting the invitation, with the addition of Arthur T. Lovell, clerk of the company and publisher of the Ancient, has been appointed to perfect arrangements and gives the following outline of the proposed trip:

"Assuming that we sail the latter part of June, or before July 10, 1912, the trip to consume about 35 days, to sail from Boston, land in Liverpool or Fishguard, go by special train to London; a total of 10 days would be consumed on the steamer, going and coming. The would leave about 19 days on foreign duty in London, leaving about 14 days for side trips. To occupy these 14 days the committee have merged three trips, the most expensive being about $300. This trip would include: Ocean voyage, five days in London and a trip on the continent, visiting Paris, Lucerne, Strassburg, Heidelberg, Wiesbaden, the Rhine, Cologne, Holland, The Hague, Amsterdam, island of Marken, back to London, with one full day in London on the return trip, hence to Liverpool."

Western bankers see but improvement in the demand for manufacturing and commodities. Some of the leading banks anticipate 4½ and 5 per cent early fall when the out-money to the country dis-eases heavier.

There has been no further hardening in Chicago, but the drawing of the bank balances here, reduction of the deposits to a stronger tone to the crop-moving demand has been a factor in the market about the same as usual this year, but for the fact that the crops are earlier than ordinary.

A large percentage of notes remain at 4 to 4½ per cent, the general run of the minimum figure. Interest rates are at 4 to 4½ per cent in the bond market.

The increase in merchandise and refrigerator shipments. Eastbound roads have been making fair increase, especially in grain and provisions. Southern roads say that this is normal for the season. The earnings of western roads continue to lag for well known reasons, in spite of extreme caution of operating and other departments. An influence in business and chilling transportation enterprise is the chaotic condition of rates, especially on long continuing hauls. This is temporary because business readily adjusts itself to commercial or economic conditions. In long run it is believed that the Prices slowly advanced withstanding the very heavy market. The report of the National Bank of Chicago, dated Sept. 2, 1928, 2,828,000,000 bushels of oats were in the country, of which 1,000,000,000 bushels were favorable. The market for oats fairly active, but prices were comparatively heavy, especially in corn. LITTLE CHANGE TO BE NOTED IN LUMBER MARKET

Prices Resist Pressure Well but Improvement Has Not Yet Resulted to Any Considerable Extent

WHOLESALE RATES

Little change is to be noted in the lumber situation from week to week. Prices do not move downward easily, although concessions are still talked of. There has been greater building activity throughout the country than was reported some time ago and general business sentiment is better. How long it will take to show itself in a pronounced degree in the lumber trade of New England remains to be seen.

Quotations below are those of wholesalers in the yards as given by the Commercial Bulletin:

FRENCH CABINET HAS TO SETTLE QUESTION OF ARMY COMMAND

Steps Will Be Taken to End Friction Between Head of Forces of North and East and General Staff Chief

NEW POST IS NEEDED

M. Messimy, War Minister, Is Expected to Advise That a Commander-in-Chief Be Appointed as Substitute

(Special to the Monitor)

PARIS—A meeting of the cabinet is to be held very shortly at Rambouillet where the President has gone to pass his summer vacation.

It is well known that at this next meeting the question of dealing with the difficulties that have arisen between General Michel and his colleagues, the members of the superior council of war, will have to be dealt with.

There are in fact two questions both of a widely different nature on the tapis, the one a question of persons and the other of principle.

It would seem that after the incidents of the last few days General Michel cannot possibly continue to act as "contingent" commander-in-chief of the armies of the north and east. It is almost certain, writes the Figaro, that his appointment will be withdrawn within the next few days and the post conferred upon another member of the council of war.

According to the usual custom this lot would now fall upon General Pau, but as he is on the point of retiring it is reported that the minister of war has the intention of immediately designating a successor who will also take over his special appointment. To avoid any doubt as to the final designation of this important post the minister has already made known his intention to nominate General Gallieni and undoubtedly the appointment will give satisfaction throughout the service and the country as well.

This will deal with the first point, but there remains the second which is much more serious, and that is the divergence of views which seems constantly to exist between the commander-in-chief of the armies of the north and east and the chief of the general army staff. The incidents of which so much has been heard recently are not the first of their kind, for similar difficulties existed a few years ago between General Brugere, then vice-president of the superior council of war, and General Penzac, the chief of the army staff.

It is reported that M. Messimy, the minister of war, proposes at the next cabinet meeting to suppress the office of vice-president of the superior council of war and to create a new post, namely that of commander-in-chief of the army.

What may be the name of the title is more or less immaterial, but it is claimed by those who understand the situation that the essential thing to do is to make such modifications that in the future it will be impossible for the chief of the army staff to interfere or compete with the general who is responsible for the command of the armies of the north and east.

One thing seems to be quite clear and that is that the government has power to act immediately without waiting for the opening of Parliament, since the regulations governing the office of chief of the army staff and the members of the superior council of war are made by simple decree.

LONDON BRIGADE WILL BUY MOTOR FIRE EQUIPMENT

Estimated Cost of 211 New Vehicles for Replacing Horse-Drawn Appliances Will Amount to $1,015,100

(Special to the Monitor)

LONDON—According to a report presented to the London county council, the question of motor appliances has been carefully considered by the officers of the London fire brigade, and it appears that they are of the opinion that the mechanically propelled are more suitable than the horse-drawn appliances. In order that the horse-drawn appliances may all be replaced by motor appliances it will be necessary to purchase 211 new vehicles at a cost of £203,000 ($1,015,100). It is understood that special arrangements will be made so as to enable the brigade to complete the transaction with as little delay as possible.

DARLINGTON HAS LARGEST ONE-DAY SHOW IN ENGLAND

Horse and Dog Exhibition Draws Many Entries and Record Made for Section in Which Goats Are Shown

(Special to the Monitor)

DARLINGTON, Eng.—The largest one-day horse and dog show in England was held here on July 22 in the South park. The entries showed a marked increase over previous years, especially in the agricultural section. The hunter's class was well filled. A special feature was the ladies' competition, in which many prominent sportswomen took part.

Much interest was taken in the pony class for children under 14 years of age. Clydesdales and shires were quite up to the usual standard, and shorthorn, dairy and grazing cattle were excellent.

Sheep attracted competitors from all parts, and a record was established in the goat section. The sweet pea and amateur photography section were added this year, and proved a success. There was a splendid display of dogs of all kinds. Driving, jumping and sports followed in the evening.

SIPADHAR OF PERSIA RESIGNS BY REQUEST OWING TO INACTIVITY

(Special to the Monitor)

TEHERAN—After a period of inactivity the Mejlis has at last requested the Sipadhar to resign. Although it was known that the former Shah Muhammad Ali had landed in the neighborhood of Asterabad with the object of overthrowing the constitution, the Sipadhar took no steps to prevent his advance toward the capital.

Owing to his attitude with regard to the situation, an attitude which in many quarters he is alleged to have assumed from a supposed complicity with the former Shah, the Mejlis ultimately resolved to request him to resign forthwith. He has accordingly tendered his resignation to the Regent. A Bakhtiari premier will, it is generally believed, be appointed to succeed him.

In the mean time it is understood that considerable correspondence has passed between Great Britain and Russia on the subject of the intrigues of the former Shah, with the result that it has been shown more clearly, if possible, than ever that the two powers are entirely agreed on the subject of their influence in Persia. The present situation is considered by them to be a purely domestic affair which must be settled by Persia herself. Another point upon which it is understood that the two powers are in accord is that the former Shah, by his recent actions, has most decidedly forfeited all claims to his pension.

The Sipadhar has refused lately to attend cabinet meetings in Teheran, declining to leave his house which is in the neighborhood of the Russian legation. This action at such a moment has aroused the indignation of the people, especially since he declared that the fundamental laws of the constitution required to be immediately and thoroughly changed.

LLOYD - GEORGE'S WARNING AROUSES EUROPE

(Special to the Monitor)

LONDON—The speech of Mr. Lloyd George to the London bankers, during the course of which he carefully read from a manuscript a long reference with respect to the condition of affairs in Morocco, has caused considerable commotion not only in England but throughout Europe. Mr. Lloyd George, who a little earlier had attended a cabinet council, read his remarks with great deliberation, the intention evidently being to show that they were not haphazard words of the moment, but a deliberate statement of British policy.

The full dispatch is as follows:

Warning Is Given

"There is only one circumstance that could possibly interfere with the continued flow of that stream of prosperity, whose fertilizing influences are spreading over the whole world—that circumstance would be a disturbance of international peace. Peace is the first condition of continued prosperity."

"Fortunately there is no reason to fear that such a catastrophe is imminent, although there are, of course, constant questions which arise between governments and produce discussion and sometimes irritation; but the common sense of nations has of late years generally intervened to secure a peaceable solution."

"Personally I am a sincere advocate of all means which would lead to the settlement of international disputes by methods such as those which civilization has so successfully set up for the adjustment of personal and corporate disputes within a country."

"I rejoice from my heart at the prospect of a happy issue to Sir Edward Grey's negotiations with America for the references which may occur in future between us and our kinsmen across the Atlantic to some more rational, more merciful, more just arbitrament than that of the sword; but I am also bound to say this, that I believe it is essential in the highest interests, not merely of our own country, but of the world, that Britain should at all hazards maintain her place and her prestige amongst the great powers of Europe. Her potential influence has many a time in the past, and may yet be in the future, invaluable to the cause of human liberty."

WORLD WALKS PRIVATELY AMID SOLITUDES OF NEW FOREST

Joy of Old Hampshire Wood Is Freedom and Privacy With Nature Natural and an Innate Home Quality

IT IS ALWAYS ALONE

(Special to the Monitor)

LONDON—Every place is a thing apart to those who love it, and perhaps the New Forest is essentially so. Geographically it is a section of the county of Hampshire in England, in reality it is a little county by itself, having a distinct individuality of its own, as well as special laws, customs and privileges pertaining to it alone. Crown property in the eyes of the nation, it becomes for every practical purpose the property of the man, whoever he may be, who lives in it, and loves it.

Every dweller in the Forest may enjoy the freedom and the privacy of a large landed proprietor, while having all the burden of his estate supported by the crown. There is a comfortable absence of restriction about the place. Man walks where he pleases, the animals wander whither they will, the flowers bloom for every one.

One asks oneself why is the New Forest so companionable, and perhaps the best answer is because it is so natural. It is nature left natural. There is no human effort, no strain, nothing that clamors for attention, no mountains even, no lakes, but a boundless variety of color and form, combination and interest, pictures at every turn, paths leading in every direction.

People visit the Forest for the first time and they recognize it as something they have always known. It has the innate quality of home about it. One is reminded of the old Italian proverb, "Non e bello quel che e bello, ma e bello quel che piace," "that is not beautiful which is merely beautiful, but that is beautiful which pleases."

It is the haunt of the bird-lover, the flower-lover, the artist, the sportsman, the pedestrian, the equestrian, the cyclist, the motorist, who all flock there in hundreds; the hotels are full in the summer season, apartments are let in every village; yet the place remains in solitude; this is its beautiful characteristic, it is always alone. How it is accomplished nobody knows, it is a mystery, a marvel, one of the old world secrets which only the Forest has kept.

The crowds are there but nobody meets them, the Forest has clothed them with invisible garments; privacy and solitude are the attributes of the place. Long may it keep them, long may it prove, that

"A heart ever new,
To all always open,
To all always true,"
is just as much the joy of one because it is the universal friend of all.

LONDON WATERMEN STRIVE TO WIN OLD DOGGETT COAT RACE

(Special to the Monitor)

LONDON—The historic Doggett's coat and badge race was decided on July 24 on the Thames over the usual course from London bridge to Chelsea. It was won by W. Fisher of Milwall.

This race, which has been an annual event since the year of the accession of King George I., was first instituted by one Thomas Doggett, a famous comedian of his day, and a staunch Hanoverian.

So pleased was he to discover, at the close of the reign of Queen Anne, that the succession of the house of Hanover was assured, that he took a boat and rowed up the river to Chelsea, calling the news on his way. On his arrival at the old Swan inn at that place, he took off his coat and flinging it among the watermen who had rowed him, its pockets full of gold, he offered it then and there to be competed for by young watermen.

He afterward endowed the race, and under the terms of his will it is now rowed every year on the anniversary of the accession of the house of Hanover. The prizes are the original coat and badge and a sum of £10. It is generally competed for by six young water-men, each of whom gets a prize of some sort, so it is naturally a popular race, but not only on account of the monetary value, but to win it is the professional crown of the young Thames watermen.

PEACE AND WAR MUSEUM COSTS $50,000 TO BUILD

(Special to the Monitor)

LUCERNE—The new building for the Peace and War Museum is completed, having cost about £10,000 ($50,000) and is proving a great success. The museum was founded by M. de Bloch for the purpose of showing the unpleasant side of warfare, and then instructing the visitors in the necessity for abolishing this means of settling difficulties.

During the first two days that the new building was open no fewer than 8000 persons visited the museum, and inspected the numerous weapons representative of all times and countries, as well as the collection of pictures dealing with the subject of war.

INDIAN EMIGRATION STOPPED

(Special to the Monitor)

MADRAS—Emigration of Indians to Natal has been stopped from June 30 in pursuance of the notification issued by the government of India, reference to which has already been made in these columns. Five hundred emigrants however left Madras by the steamer Um-lazi just before the new regulations came into force.

DURHAM MINERS LAY DOWN TOOLS TO JOIN BIG ANNUAL REUNION

(Special to the Monitor)

DURHAM, Eng.—The fortieth annual gathering of the Durham Miners Association took place recently on the large race course. This reunion of the whole of the lodges of this powerful organization is the largest and most important event in mining circles.

Over 122,000 men and boys laid down their tools for this big meeting. The crowd invaded the little ancient city and marched through the narrow streets from the station to the south side of the river. The best preparations possible had been made for them.

The men from Dawson lodge arrived before 8 o'clock with their band and banner, and after that there followed on in quick succession for over three hours a procession of bands and banners and visitors. The old city was filled to overflowing and all places of interest, including the cathedral and castle were besieged; and boating on the river, cricket on the city ground and other pastimes helped to make a pleasant day for them.

On the race course the more serious thinking assembled to hear the speakers of the day. One platform was presided over by John Wilson, M. P.

WEST SOMERSET POLLING RETAINS UNIONISTS' SEAT

Political Opinion Shows Practically No Change in Great Britain, Judging by Results of By-Elections

(Special to the Monitor)

LONDON—The polling for West Somersetshire has resulted in the return of the Conservatives by a majority of 604 votes, the full figures being: Col. D. F. Bole (U.), 5025; C. H. Dudley Ward (L.), 4421; Unionist majority, 604.

The result makes no difference in the balance of parties as the division has always been a Conservative one. The nearest approach to a Liberal victory was in 1906 when, in the midst of other Unionist disasters Mr. Dudley Ward got as near as 272 votes to the Conservative poll. In 1910 when the seat was contested by Mr. King the Unionist majority was 1066.

Mr. Dudley, who has now again contested the seat, has reduced that total to 604 on a slightly increased poll. The result taken in conjunction with other recent polls shows practically no change in the political opinions of the country.

YOKOHAMA ENJOYS FIREWORKS DISPLAY UPON AMERICA'S DAY

(Special to the Monitor)

YOKOHAMA, Japan—One of the most picturesque celebrations of the "glorious Fourth" takes place every year at Yokohama when American residents to the number of over 800 arrange a great display of fireworks in the harbor from boats, which can be watched to advantage by the crowds from the sea front. All Yokohama goes to see it.

This year the weather was too wet to admit of the display taking place on the Fourth, but the following evening was ideal and there was a record gathering of Japanese to witness it. Thousands of Japanese put off in boats and barges of all kinds to watch the fireworks from the sea, and as the boats all carry many Japanese paper lanterns the effect was most artistic and pleasing.

One would almost think that the Fourth of July is an international celebration in Japan rather than a national one, as practically all foreigners of all nationalities attend the festivities if they do not actually take part in them, and certainly all enjoy them thoroughly.

The Japanese are a people who have now come to want "a finger in every pie," as the saying goes, and by this is meant that when the foreign residents of Japan celebrate a national event they enthusiastically join in and display the utmost friendliness.

GREEK CHAMBER EXPECTS SURPLUS

(Special to the Monitor)

ATHENS—The budget has been passed and the Chamber adjourned until October. Owing to various changes, constitutional and others, as well as new taxes, last February's estimate has increased on both sides of the account by about $5,000,000 (2,500,000 drachmae), so that the receipts now are given as 138,000,000 drachmae and the surplus as about 1,000,000 drachmae.

It is the opinion of the minister of finance that the expected surplus will be exceeded. A reduction in expenditure of 1,000,000 drachmae was made by an item for that amount for grand maneuvers being struck out, owing to General Eydoux maintaining that the condition of the troops was not yet such as to render it advisable for them to take part in maneuvers on a large scale.

REPORTS OF CRISIS IN AFRICAN MINISTRY DENIED BY MR. SAUER

Head of Government Lines Disappointed Critics by Statement That Cabinet Was Agreed Upon Policy

LEGISLATION TOLD

(Special to the Monitor)

CAPE TOWN, S. A.—Owing to the reported differences in the South African cabinet, the speech made by Mr. Sauer, minister of railways, at Victoria West recently, was eagerly awaited, since among the reports being circulated was one to the effect that Mr. Sauer would tender his resignation.

Referring to the rumors of a cabinet crisis, Mr. Sauer declared that there was no more crisis at the present moment than there had been since he joined the ministry. They did not, he pointed out, always manage to say the same thing, but they were all agreed on the same lines of policy.

Mr. Sauer referred during the course of his speech to the question of education, and he explained that the government would adhere to what they had already said, namely that there would be no compulsion on the language question.

As regards the poor white population, Mr. Sauer explained that legislation would be brought forward dealing with this question during the forthcoming session, and further expressed the hope that in dealing with the question of immigration and settlement, the needs of the people of South Africa would be dealt with first.

He explained at the same time that he was in no way opposed to the immigration of white people into South Africa, provided they were suitable settlers and would assist in the development of the country.

NOMINATION PLAN ASSISTS SETTLERS

(Special to the Monitor)

ADELAIDE, S. Aus.—The system of assisted immigration, adopted by the government of South Australia, has proved most successful. By this scheme, residents in the state may nominate relatives, agricultural laborers and certain tradesmen for assisted passages from the United Kingdom, and when it is realized that in less than three months over 600 people have been nominated there is no doubt as to the popularity of the scheme, for the majority of those recommended consist of the wives, families and relatives of settlers who have recently arrived in the state.

BELGIAN FORTS MODERN

(Special to the Monitor)

BRUSSELS—In the Belgian Senate recently General Hellebaut, the new minister of war, in reply to several questions on the subject of the Belgian defenses stated that the forts of Liege and Namur were equipped in the most approved modern fashion and could be considered quite secure. The Antwerp defenses, the minister added, would be strengthened in the near future.

THE HOME FORUM

Decorator Free From Convention

WILLIAM NICHOLSON was a poster artist whose portraits of Whittier, Kipling, Queen Victoria and Roosevelt, done on colored wood blocks, were the collector's envy, according to the Literary Digest, but unlike most artists who begin to make a success in such a specialty he has gone on to win the public in serious portraiture in oils. The International Studio says:

If it were possible to sum up the distinctive qualities of Mr. Nicholson's art in a single phrase, it would probably be nearest the mark to describe him as a decorator who had never allowed himself to become a slave to convention. His feeling for design and his instinct for style give a decorative character to all his paintings, and his management of color helps to make this character more definite, but it shows, perhaps, most of all in his love for simplification. In his pictures he eliminates everything that is not essential to explain his intention—all unimportant details, all useless accessories, all the small matters which do not serve some plain purpose in his scheme of composition—and he reduces the complexities of nature to a kind of monumental simplicity which is the more impressive because it recognizes as significant only the really vital elements of the subject. But he has the art of making his work simple in effect without taking away any part of its legitimate interest.

Tribute to Payne

The dedication of a monument to a poet gave the commencement exercises of one college a distinction too infrequent in this country. Union University has dedicated a memorial gateway on its campus to John Howard Payne, author of "Home, Sweet Home." It was here that Payne spent his student days; hence the memorial, which may expand, as the fund seems likely to grow beyond the needs of the cost of the gateway, into the additional establishment of a chair of English poetry.—Literary Digest.

PALATIAL PROVISION FOR THE MANY

IT would have been a daring dream enough to the men who agonized for the liberty of the people in days gone by to fancy the modern palaces which are for the use of the public in large cities the world over, but especially in our America. Not only the public libraries and galleries with their stores of intellectual treasures but the buildings of every day use for the most every day folk who may perhaps never choose to avail themselves of the higher comforts of the intellectual sort, are veritable palaces, open to all.

The beauty of public buildings like state houses and capitols is perhaps not so much of an innovation on things as they used to be, though these nowadays are the property of the citizens and are open to their visits more freely than similar buildings of old time. But the huge department stores built just to attract the average man or more particularly the average woman—for it is by a host of average patrons that these thrive rather than by the richer few—are really palaces where the humblest, or almost the humblest, may feel quite at home and enjoy temporary luxuries which would have been beyond the reach of kings in an earlier age.

The huge new terminal railway station at Chicago is one of the striking examples of these modern palaces, and this is indeed free to the very humblest if he can merely show that he is bound for a five-cent trip to the first uptown stop. A railway station is the most democratic of rendezvous, and the gorgeous waiting saloons may shelter at the same moment a millionaire's wife whose automobile has timed her arrival a little too promptly and the street vender toiling to his own down town tenement. The warmth and cheer and the beauty, too, of these places is at least as hospitable as the dimly lighted, vast and cold rooms which we see in Europe as the homes of the great and prosperous of old. The marble staircases and the tiled floors, the elevators and baths and tea rooms and rest rooms and lounging places have an elegance of luxury which are of royal dignity, and they are open to every day folk, if not all entirely free, yet all for the investment of moderate sums.

In ways like these the level of living, so far as its material expression goes, is rising steadily in all the cities. It must have effect on the private surroundings of every citizen, establishing a higher standard of beauty and fitness for each as he is able to perceive it.

ARTIFICIAL RUBY IS REAL RUBY

IT has long been a fascinating dream of experiment and chemical research to make diamonds, and even yet the mineralogists do not despair. But they have not succeeded here or with emeralds as they have in the case of stones that consist chiefly of corundum, that is, crystallized aluminum. A pure white product may be secured from ammonium alum and various colors are introduced. Citing an article in an English magazine, the Literary Digest says that the artificial production of the corundum gemstone may be considered to be completely solved, and cut stones can now be obtained in every variety of color, from pure white to ruby and sapphire, at prices ranging from four to 10 shillings a carat, according to color, quality and size.

Whatever may be their economic importance, a very much debated question, there can be no doubt as to the experimental interest of this group of artificial gems. In the first place, it is a matter of some interest that a mass of fused material formed in this way should not be crystalline, but possess all the characteristics of a single crystal.

(But) although the artificial corundum is a true crystal, it possesses the shape and formation of a congealed liquid or glass. The practical interest of this lies in the fact that it affords the only means of distinction between this artificial corundum and the naturally formed gemstone. . . . For all practical purposes, the artificial ruby is a ruby, and one can only deny that it is a "genuine ruby" if this word is held to connote essentially a product found in the earth and not made by man.

Nobody has any right to supply any one with paste under the name of artificial or synthetic gem. The distinction between the two should be clearly recognized, and it should not be permitted to use the term "artificial" indiscriminately.

Color

The lovely things that I have watched unthinking,
Unknowing, day by day,
That their soft eyes had steeped my soul in color
That will not fade away.

Great saffron sunset clouds, and larkspur distance,
And miles of fenceless plain,
And hillside golden green in that unearthly
Clear shining after rain.

And nights of blue and pearl; and long, smooth beaches
Yellow as sunburnt wheat,
Edged with a line of foam, that creams and hisses
Enticing weary feet.

If I am tired I call on these to help me
To dream—and dawn-lit skies,
Lemon and pink, of faintest, coolest lilac,
Float on my soothed eyes.

And emeralds, and sunset heaved opals,
And Asian marble, veined
With scarlet fire; and cold green jade, and moonstones
Misty and azure stained—

There is no night so black but you glow through it;
There is no morn so drear,
O color of the world, but I can find you
Most tender, pure and clear.
—Dorothea Mackellar in the Spectator.

Home Product

Certain exercises of the school had passed off with great success, and, at the request of the principal, a local merchant had been asked to address the students. This man, of great pomposity, and one to whom nothing had ever happened to shake his high opinion of himself, was only too glad to accept the invitation.

At the conclusion of his remarks, the principal, with the praiseworthy purpose of saying something complimentary, took occasion to observe:
"You acquitted yourself finely, sir. Your remarks were well chosen."
"Well chosen!" was the indignant remonstrance. "I'll have you to know, sir, that my remarks were not 'chosen' at all. Every word I uttered was original, sir!"—Lippincott.

"Though the Plough Be Rough"

WRITING about simplified spelling Brander Matthews says in Munsey:

Most of those who have paid no special attention to the subject do not really notice how very arbitrary and artificial many of our spellings are. Why should we represent the same sound by ie in believe and by ei in perceive? Why should we spell fancy with an f and phantom with a ph? Why should ough have half a dozen different sounds, in though, through, cough, hiccough, rough and plough?

This last anomaly is so obviously absurd that most Americans now write hiccup and plow, and that Tennyson insisted always on writing tho'. The National Education Association some years ago cut through down to thru; and this bold simplification has been approved by the simplified spelling board. It may be noted here that Tennyson so disliked the fantastic complexity of through that he employed a simplification of his own—thro', which will be found in the final edition of his poems, prepared by himself. Besides thru, the simplified spelling board has recommended tho, altho, thoro, and boro, with their compounds thruout, thoroly, and so forth.

Reindeer in Alaska

Another friend of the Alaskan native is the reindeer, which was imported by the United States government and has rapidly multiplied. The beast often proves somewhat unreliable as a draft animal, being generally inferior to a dog-team, but I used him to carry the mail on two of my routes and also kept two deer for my own service, says a writer in Everybody's. These two were well broken and great pets. They would follow us about like dogs.

There is nothing funnier in the north-land than the progress of a half-broken reindeer in harness. For Thanksgiving day of that year we were invited to the reindeer station across the bay, and the superintendent sent over 30 sled deer to carry the party on the nine-mile journey. Some of the deer were rather green, and their extraordinary antics kept us all in a gale of laughter. They shot from side to side in frantic dashes or stopped dead still so that there were frequent spills in the soft snow. No harm was done, of course, and it was one of the merriest hours I remember.

RHODODENDRON PINK PEARL ATTRACTS

RHODODENDRON "Pink Pearl" should be known to all lovers of shrubs, for it has made its reputation by virtue of the loveliness of its bloom and the beauty of its foliage, added to its general appearance of sturdy well being. The accompanying photograph of "Pink Pearl" is one taken in a wild garden in the south of England, where the shrub was planted as a baby three springs ago, producing the following summer just two heads of bloom, where this summer 25 panicles of glorious pink and creamy pearl blossoms greeted the sunlight.

A deep hole dug in the clay soil, filled with good garden loam and well drained by means of clinkers at the bottom, was the home projected for this particular Pink Pearl, and it is at present protected from the investigations of rabbits by a circle of wire netting. The wild garden is only in the making and those shrubs and plants that need the privacy of their own bit of ground are fenced in in this rather unsightly manner, but eventually a rabbit proof fence will form this protection, hidden from sight among the trees and bushes around.

A large "bed" of hydrangea paniculata and Anthony Waterer spirea is a feature in an open glade. Three noble Douglas pines form a charming background, and their blue-green beauty an attractive contrast to the oaks, maples and occasional beech and acacia surrounding the glade. A little tree of magnolia stellata possesses a sunny spot close to a fringe of common firs, and the taller St. John's wort makes a splash of yellow in the half sunlight and contrasts

"USES OF ADVERSITY"

MANKIND has ever sought an explanation of the suffering which has seemed heaped upon it. And good people generally have concluded that suffering is a divine agent, sent to draw men back to God. It is sometimes asserted that Christian Science ignores suffering. Christian Science does not ignore the fact that to themselves mortals appear to suffer, but it does emphatically deny that suffering is divinely sent or divinely permitted. It agrees with the Scripture, "all things work together for good to them that love God." Suffering sometimes seems included in these "things," but only they "that love God" can extract therefrom honey instead of poison.

When the purposelessness of mere suffering becomes apparent to one who has spent long years in submission thereto, a sense of regret for wasted time usually follows. But nothing is wasted. God's purposes are forever fulfilled. A mortal's road to the recognition of the unbroken harmony of existence is made devious and hard by his belief that disorders are natural and necessary. "Once convinced that harmonious living is the only real living one sees that never for a moment has God's plan for the happiness of His creation been interrupted. And if during those seemingly barren years one's aim has been high and one has been honestly seeking and loving the spiritual, then from every past trial may be garnered a present good.

Especially to one who discerns, however faintly, his own niche in the infinite unity of God, comes the realization of rich possession where seemed only the sterility of poverty. The devices employed to wile away the tedium of days of enforced uselessness now yield abundant fruitage in the line of his special talent. And the quiet strength gained by stifled groans, the fortitude of unshed tears, the dignity of uncomplaining patience make easier the ascending way. The invalid, the failure, the decrepit awake to the knowledge that in God's pure sight they are integrants of the universe. Vividly it comes home to each that he is worth while, that there is a place for him—his own God-given place. That if he had not been there when "the morning stars sang together" the glad song must have faltered, and the joyous shouts of "the sons of men" become silent from a sense of lack. "There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the spirit;" and he who cognizes his own inherent kingliness as a child of God can royally control every circumstance, past and present, himself subject alone to his Father.

But in order that "the uses of adversity" may be made sweet, one must refuse to remain in unnatural conditions. The reward of a long good life is not decrepitude, but increase of wisdom, broader views, and larger doing; and the realization of this arrests the encroachments of age. Invalidism and failure being also results of the belief in limitation, decay and dissolution, a right view of the continuity of life will aid in setting one free. "The body improves under the same regimen which spiritualizes the thought; and if health is not made manifest under this regimen, this proves that fear is governing the body" (Science and Health, p. 370). To be theoretically correct is to have taken a step upward, to have put one foot on a higher rung of the ladder which reaches heavenward, but progress requires that the other foot be brought up as well. If an individual, starting to climb the upward way, has been frightened and confused at the outset by the warnings of an over-cautious helper, he may seem for a time to halt, suspended between clear vision and the fear to follow. But he need not hang so. One's own wrong thinking alone can hinder one's advancement. Another's fear need not hamper one. Child-like reliance on the infinite care of God, divine Love, will give one faith and courage to follow the beckoning vision, and will also reveal the mistake of the well-meaning adviser. It is well that they who are at the foot of a new and unlearned way should ascend with care. It is not Christian Science, not an exact knowledge of God and His Christ, that bids one take too long a step, skipping rungs to which one must later go back. But neither is it Science that would keep one with one foot dangling helplessly in the air, or desperately clinging to a lower rung.

Yet even such a period of uncertainty can be made to yield a quota of good. Possibly the one undergoing the experience is inclined to be impulsive, to rush ahead in reckless manner. If this be the case, his distrust in his own judgment may have led him to exaggerate his friend's warning. If he follow the admonition of Jesus, "Have faith in God," he will learn to have faith in himself as God's child. "Trust thyself," says Emerson, "every heart vibrates to that iron string." Solomon's prayer for wisdom was heard and answered. So will that same prayer be answered today. Perhaps, however, timidity is one's besetting weakness. Then one may gain courage by trusting God and bravely going on. Never again can fear argue so loudly to a heart thus strengthened.

But the assurance that "all things work together for good to them that love God" is not an argument for the utility of suffering. As well might one argue for the usefulness of sin. Suffering is always the result of seeming destruction. Lost wealth, vanished hopes, broken peace. It is the effort to regain that which seems lost that is reconstructive, and which eventually brings lost restoration. Mistaken though these efforts may at first be, God understands, and will at last bring one to a place of peace. "To them who are the called according to His purpose" stands the promise of the abiding and continual triumph of good. And His purpose is that all shall respond to the compelling sweetness of the call of divine Love.

Mt. Desert Called Most Beautiful Place in the Whole World

MOUNT DESERT is said by a writer in the Century to be the one spot on the whole Atlantic coast from Mexico to Labrador where the mountains go down to the sea. He says:

"This is the most beautiful place in the world," a well-known artist assured me last summer. "I've been all round—Italy, Greece, Syria—but I've never found anything to equal it."

This beauty impresses the stranger from afar. As he coasts eastward along the Maine shore, 13 mountains that seem to rise directly out of the sea compose themselves into three main masses, standing out in noble relief in the clear atmosphere. The morning I first saw them the westernmost mass was heavy, black, and solemn. The others, divided by those delightful little twins, the Bubbles, were more friendly, with fleecy clouds stooping over them and letting through a few splashes of sunlight here and there to gild their peaks and sides.

Retort Courteous

"I wish no pay for this poem," remarked the long-haired individual. "I merely submit it as a compliment."
"Then, my dear sir, permit me to return the compliment," replied the editor, with true journalistic courtesy.—Philadelphia Record.

Schoolboy Memories

In a book named "Notes from the Life of an Ordinary Mortal" we find some specimens of the verse which some boys at the great English school, Eton, wrote as school tasks. One was about the trip of the Prince of Wales in America and says among other things:

"He sees the lions of the place, the falls, He visits, lays foundations, goes to balls, Dances with blundering damsels in quadrilles, Makes shooting parties to the neighboring hills. Ladies admire the beauty of his nose, Gentlemen take pattern from his clothes." Then a poem on David and Goliath was written by "a large boy with sandy whiskers and a moustache." We remember that to make verses in correct Latin that will scan rightly is one of the tasks which English school boys in books are always groaning over. This boy wrote in very simple Latin indeed, and the result is easy to read, if not exactly what one would call poetry. He says in part:

"Tum dixit David, volo pugnare Goliath. Respondit Saulus, non potes vincere monstrum."
Sed dixit David, ego possum vincere monstrum."

Nursery Rhymes and the Directory

An amusing game might be made of the discovery by a writer in the New York Sun that the names found in the city directory or the telephone book can be made up into sentences and even into nursery rhymes—by a little stretching of an elastic imagination. The following was printed but others could no doubt be found. The names are supposed to be genuine, and in each case the name of the branch exchange to which each belongs was given below in parenthesis. Here it is:
T. Winkle, T. Winkle, Little Star,
Howe—Wonder—Watt—Yue—A. R. E.,
Oppen—Bove—The World—Soo—High,
Lyke—A Diamond—Innd—Eskey.

France a Creditor of America

SEEKING a loan of millions with which to supplement his own investment, the promoter of a lower Broadway business structure that is to pierce the clouds, has turned to France for funds. Thither some of the larger American railway corporations also have been getting their cash of late; and signs multiply that in the future the two republics are to have a cash nexus as well as ties of sentiment arising from an anti-British coalition in the eighteenth century and because of a common faith in democracy of a republican type. Time was when Great Britain and Holland usually were the lenders to promoters of American enterprises who could not pay domestic rates of interest or who sought cash in sums that few American lenders had at their disposal.

But during the past century, France recovering from her frightful losses during the Napoleonic regime and relegating military ideals to a secondary place, has silently saved, steadily developed the most perfect financial system in the world, established herself as the banker-nation, and gained a power in international affairs through her mobile and cumulative wealth that makes her envied by nations far richer in natural resources and more populous.

The appeal to the thrifty French for further aid in American economic expansion and urban reconstruction will not be prejudiced by the fact that the two republics have agreed to make war between them impossible for all time. Nor will the new era of cordial, fraternal and reciprocal relations between the universities and societies of learned men of the two countries militate against the endeavor to create a stronger bond of pecuniary interest. In the past the ties between the two peoples have been those of sentiment chiefly. They will not waive; but there are to be others, challenging British and German domination in the past, in finance and in education.

Credit for the altered present attitude and for the impending change is due mainly, so far as persons have counted, to M. Jusserand, the ambassador from France. Only surpassed by Mr. Bryce in his intelligent appreciation of Americanism, whether in its political, educational or literary manifestations, M. Jusserand has become persona grata to the American people; and by his tact, discretion and real understanding of the American point of view, he has been able correctly to advise officials at Paris.

High School and College

It is a regrettable fact that so large a percentage of public school children fail to reach high school, and it is equally regrettable that so many fortunate enough to reach high school fail to reach college. There are too many contributory causes in each case to be considered here. Those who are charged with the bringing up of children, whether parents or guardians, however, whether they are directly interested in the National Education Association at its last session took steps toward making the transition from the high school to the college easier for the student.

These steps seem to be as natural as they are necessary, and they have the merit, also, of being simple. If carried out, the high school must instruct every student in the elements of good citizenship, a duty that, in the opinion of the association, should not be delegated to a college, because there is no guarantee that any particular student will actually go to college. High school courses must be flexible, for the high school period is the time for the youth to discover his bent. Broad vocational instruction should find place in the high school to prepare for efficiency. Mechanic arts, agriculture, etc., should be recognized as rational elements in the education of all boys and girls, and especially of those who have not as yet chosen their vocations.

Then as to the higher education, it is held that the college should recognize such a school curriculum and modify its entrance requirements. The reasons given in support of this contention are full and convincing. The principal argument advanced in its favor, and the one that will appeal most directly to those who have the care and direction of the students is that "present college entrance requirements either prevent many students from taking high school courses that they need, or prevent them from going to college after they have taken courses dictated by their actual needs." In other words, what is needed is that the college shall get into closer touch with the high school and its purposes. It can do this, and assist thousands of high school students to obtain a higher education, by recognizing their individual or, if the term be permissible when used in the group sense, their class necessities. The pleasing thing about the whole matter is the evidence it gives of a growing recognition of the necessity for flexibility and adjustment in education.

Affairs in Albania

THE condition of affairs in Albania has become a European scandal. Certain European papers, notably the London Times, have faced the facts, and have recorded them fearlessly and courageously, just as they have, from first to last, been set forth with scrupulous fairness and moderation in the columns of this paper. It is, indeed, absolutely unnecessary to exaggerate "nor set down aught in malice." The process of the Turkification of the Sultan's non-Ottoman dominions, under the egis of Torgut Shekret Pasha, is too painfully reminiscent of the Bulgarian atrocities to deceive those who remember Mr. Gladstone's famous appeal for freedom and justice in the Balkans.

Today there is no one to take Mr. Gladstone's place. Sir Edwin Pears, who collected the material which Mr. Gladstone used with such terrific effect, admits sadly enough that the Albanian horrors of today as recorded in a portion of the press of Europe are probably in no way overstated, but the only remedy he has to offer is that the great powers should support the Liberal element of what is known as the Young Turk party against the reactionary element. If the question at stake were merely that of taxation or schools or the substitution of the Roman alphabet for the Arabic this might be sound advice. Unfortunately what is quivering in the balance is not reform bills but human lives, not nationalist ideals but security from slow starvation, disease and torture. The miserable Albanians, penned in a wall of Ottoman steel in districts where food is unobtainable, are slowly but steadily ceasing to be. The rather more fortunate refugees who have gained the protection of the Montenegrin frontier are only in a degree less pitiable. Housed in caves, almost naked and within measurable distance of starvation, their condition has been described by those who have seen it as terrible in the extreme. Yet so awful are the stories of violence and outrage which have overtaken those who have remained in their own country that the fugitives are prepared cheerfully to face death in at least peace rather than to trust the word of the Turks again.

The facts are perfectly well known to the great powers, yet the great powers make no sign. If, however, the sign is not made immediately it need not be made at all. The Turkish government seems determined to apply to the Malissori tribesmen the Catonian saying, "Delenda est Carthago." That this should be possible is the most crushing criticism of the Christianity of Europe. A single word from the great powers, and the future of Albania would be secure. That word is not forthcoming simply because the powers will not subordinate their individual selfish aims to the practise of the religion they one and all profess.

These aims are partly financial and partly purely political. On the one hand, there is the ambition to obtain financial and commercial concessions, which cannot be demanded quite so openly at Constantinople as at Fez; on the other hand, there is the greed of territorial aggrandizement which an unselfish move might endanger. In these circumstances the prolonged agony of the pacification of Albania has been allowed to drag to its weary end. The one effort really made has been to keep it as quiet as possible.

WHATEVER objection New York Central park squirrels may have to the order of the commissioner that no peanuts shall be sold in the preserve, the squirrels of the Boston Public Garden will no doubt also place themselves on record to the effect that such a course means shortening the winter supply.

The People and History

It is said in the press that the library of Benjamin Lossing, the American historian, is preserved on his farm in New York state, and is in the possession of his heirs, who, we are told, declined the offer for its purchase made by an American college. The library no doubt has many books of value, but it contains in addition documents and papers that must be of historical value as original sources of information. Whether or not Mr. Lossing is to be put in the front rank of the historians of America is a matter for those best qualified to judge, but all can agree that a collection such as he left ought to be in some depository where it can be preserved as it ought, and where the hazards of weather and accident may not imperil what is, after all, matter of public interest and importance.

The recent great losses suffered by the state library at Albany, when papers and books were destroyed that can never be replaced, showed pretty clearly how important it is to guard in every possible way the sources from which must be had the materials for writing the history of the United States. There is nothing so calming to an excited or an interested view of history as an offer to consult the original documentary evidences. When this is done fable after fable is driven from the stage; men have by no means reached the state where history is certain to be written impartially, a fact that is shown in the United States by constant efforts to distort or suppress history as it shall be written for the children in the public schools, and it is by preserving in its integrity, so far as may, the great mass of original authorities and written evidences existing in the United States that its history can be properly written. Our readers will appreciate the force of this statement when they reflect that it is only within recent years that history, as such, has been written with a sincere desire to be impartial and to present it as a series of facts having a certain relation one to the other. If it is the right and necessity of adults that history should be treated thus, a thousand times more so is it that of the children. It is not fair to children or to the commonwealth of which they shall one day compose the citizenship that they shall be saddled with untrue statements for which they are in no way to blame, and the consequences of which may for years color their views as adults. One must never conceive of history, whether it be that of a little town in the hills or of an empire, as a mere record of events prepared for easy reference. To treat history thus is to make it merely a form of intellectual amusement; the practical side of its study and the momentous is that history is at once a storehouse and a guide. Though it may be laborious and take some time to arrive at the conclusion, even a very modest acquaintance with it teaches that history is none else than the record of the steady battle of wrong with right and the recurrent emergence of right as victor. When a legislative body and their adherents say: "We purpose to pass such and such a law that shall prevent certain things," their cause is not helped with the jury of the public if the declaration is met with the answer: "Laws such as that have been declared unjust, and here and here are the records." But these records must be preserved in history not garbled or excised.

It is for these reasons and for the right instruction of the people that it is always to be hoped that no collection of documents will ever be neglected either by the state or by those private benefactors to whom already the United States owes so much.

THE fact cannot be lost sight of that the existence of riot, revolution and anarchy in Hayti is not merely disgraceful to that republic but to this also. It may be difficult for some in this country to see wherein the government at Washington should assume any responsibility in this matter, but it is not so difficult for others to do so, and especially is it easy for foreign onlookers to see that the United States should either take steps to prevent the recurrence of these outbreaks or permit some other nation to intervene in behalf of common decency and good order.

There is the objection, of course, that interference, in a manner that would be effective, might involve the United States in obligations to proceed along similar lines in relation to some other of the smaller and less responsible of the Latin republics, and that it might thereby be plunged in endless complications. This argument would have force if, under the interpretation of the Monroe doctrine that has now been generally accepted, this nation has not already assumed these obligations.

A Problem That Calls for Solution

What is needed is not military procedure, in the ordinary sense, but such a display of authority as will convince the Haytiens of the ability of the United States to preserve order in its neighborhood. This authority may extend to the placing of proper restraint upon the use of the revenues of the republic. It can be employed to support properly constituted government in the republic. The means of restoring peace to Hayti and of maintaining it will be easily found once it is determined at Washington to take a positive position in the matter. Latterly there has been no government, no restraint, no respect for life or property or law in Hayti. It is difficult to excuse the United States, the dominant power among the republics of these continents for the existence of these conditions; it will be impossible to offer a defense for their continuance. Admittedly the problem which the Haytien situation offers is a difficult and a delicate one; but it is undeniably this nation's problem, and national pride and honor as well as a correct sense of international obligation call for its solution.

ATTACKING the Standard Oil Company will not be such an easy matter when it shall be divided up into fifty-seven parts. In all candor it should be said, therefore, that the old centralized form of the trust had its merits.

WITH the United States and Canada principally interested in the passing of the Senate free-list bill, the Kern amendment, providing that free admission of meat, flour and cereal products shall apply only to articles "coming from any foreign country with which the United States has reciprocal trade agreement," a number of South American nations undoubtedly will take notice. Especially in the case of Argentina, where stock raising and export of meat are assuming the proportions of a great industry, any arrangement that will admit meat free into the United States is bound to arrest attention. Consequently the successor to Charles H. Sherrill, as American minister to Argentina, may find full demand for his diplomatic ability when he assumes charge of his office, for it goes without saying that the interests now developing the packing business of the South American republic are not unmindful that the opening of new markets means much to the sources of supply.

Whether reciprocal arrangements between Argentina and the United States are advisable now is something not easily determined. There are those who aver that in case Argentine beef could be placed in this country duty free, it would still be the American packers who acted as purveyors. This is undoubtedly true, for American interests are behind the large purchases of Argentine grazing lands. But, on the other hand, it will not do to antagonize reciprocal arrangements simply on this ground. The time is past when sensible people fail to take all points into consideration. The American packing industry is a tremendous proposition, and there is no reason why it should be prevented from broadening, providing, of course, that the interests of the consumer are safeguarded.

The time is undoubtedly coming when commercial barriers will be broken down in America. The process of elimination may be gradual. The proposed step with Canada is a beginning. Mexico, the nearest neighbor to the south, already asks: What about reciprocity?

If Argentina has all the advantages of a stock-raising country—If the United States needs meat to feed its teeming population—If reciprocity is a means to a deserving end, of benefit to ranchman, packer, dealer and consumer—

If all these factors enter into the proposition, the least that can be done now is to make close investigation of all the facts and let commercial liberation be established when desired.

Reciprocity is only in its infancy in the western world; it will grow according to the way the American nations foster it.

If Argentina should ask a hearing let the United States listen.

Edison En Route for Europe

MR. EDISON, whose play as well as toil is the exploration and the harnessing of natural forces to serve men, is to travel in Europe. Twenty years have passed since he last quit his laboratory for a pleasure tour in regions beyond seas, years that have been fruitful to the investigator and to the public he serves, but less spectacular than years that went before in sensational discoveries focusing upon him a world's thought and talk. Hence he has somewhat sunk out of sight, and there is danger that justice may not be done him by a new generation.

When he last visited Europe Mr. Edison was made to understand by eminent physicists and by learned societies that he was rated as a man of unusual attainments and triumphs, and that, like Franklin of an earlier time, he was the more interesting because of the unconventionality of his training in science and the sturdy indifference he showed to the conventions and fashions of life. An equally cordial and reverential welcome no doubt will await the man on this trip, if he only will let himself be made a lion of.

Americans are wont to give their ardent admiration to men more prone than Mr. Edison to self-advertisement and flattery of the public. His hermit-like seclusion, his disinclination to talk about himself or his achievements, his relative indifference to money, save as medium for lavish experiment in new fields of research—these have contributed to an undervaluation of the man by his countrymen that may take years to change. There may be an awakening some day, however, and an effort to do him justice. It is in Europe today that he is most justly rated, because seen in a truer perspective, and also because after all he is more like a German state-supported and equipped savant concentrating all his days on a specialty and serving society at large than he is like the traditional American inventor or investigator in the realm of physics. In a poll of its readers throughout Europe recently taken by a widely circulated Berlin journal Mr. Edison was the only American to receive votes as worthy to be enrolled among living "great men." When his career is reviewed, who is there among his countrymen that compares with him in direct influence upon daily life, by his practical applications of electricity to human intercourse?

A CHEESE made in Appleton, Wis., for the Chicago dairy show weighs six tons. It is unnecessary to say that there will be a sandwich counter hard by.
